YOUTH DROWNS NEAR BELLBROOK

BANDITS WHO ROBBED OHIO BANK CAPTURED AND LOOT RECOVERED

Three Gunmen Held
After Hold-Up In
Wild West Style

GEORGETOWN, O., June 15.—Captured as they made a desperate attempt to escape a posse by crossing the Ohio River in a boat at Camp Ohio, three men, who police say robbed the Higginsport Citizens Bank near here, were held under close guard in the Brown County jail here today.

Two of the captured trio gave their names as Howard Bowman, 26, and Neil Bowman, 22, his brother. The third said he was Lyle Cornell, 23, of Texas. The Bowman's said they were from Portland, O.

Although they denied any connection with the notorious Bowman gang that has terrorized Southern Ohio with a long string of daring and sensational bank robberies, Sheriff John E. Neu of Brown County said it was possible that they were the same.

The trio was captured shortly after the Higginsport bank was held up and robbed of about $6,000. The loot was recovered with the apprehension of the three men, police said.

The holdup of the Higginsport bank was staged in "wild west" fashion with the bandits virtually "shooting up the town." One man, Louis Schneck of Higginsport, was wounded in the gunplay. He was shot in the right leg.

Only two persons were in the bank when the bandits boldly raided the institution. They were C. B. Williams, cashier, and Miss Mary Waterfield, a clerk. Both were forced into a teller's cage while the bandits scooped up all available cash.

Leaving a trail of gunfire behind them, the bandits fled. In their haste to get away, the bandits dropped $20,000 in currency.

Two Higginsport citizens, Robert Cahill and Ross Seddon, who saw the bandits leaving the bank, opened fire with revolvers. One of the shots struck the man identified as Cornell.

A posse was organized and the fleeing bandits were chased to a hill between Felicity and Rural, where they were surrounded. They managed to elude the searchers, however, stealing a truck and driving madly toward the Ohio River. The posse took up the chase again and caught up with the fugitives just as they were attempting to pull a rowboat into the river and escape into Kentucky. Threatened with gunfire, the bandits surrendered.

LABORERS IN LEAKY BOAT RESCUE THREE

CHICAGO, June 16.—Three laborers in a leaky rowboat without oars today were the heroes of an unassuming rescue of two young men and a girl whose motorboat had capsized in Lake Michigan, half a mile out.

Paddling with their hands the three men made two trips to the disabled boat and on the second trip when their weight was about to sink the rowboat they swam in to give the half-drowned man who could not swim a chance.

The workmen departed without disclosing their names.

SUB IS MOVING SLOWLY TO PORT

Wilkins Attempts To
Repair Damage

COBH, Ireland, June 16.—Inhabitants of this port today were eagerly anticipating the arrival of Sir Hubert Wilkins' polar submarine Nautilus which was being towed here by the American battleship Wyoming.

According to latest reports, however, it will take at least a week for the underwater craft to arrive at this port. She was proceeding today in this direction at the rate of about eight knots per hour.

When the Nautilus arrives off Cobh, a local tug will be set out to relieve the Wyoming of her tow, permitting the battleship to proceed to Copenhagen where she and the Arkansas are due June 23.

The latest wireless message from Admiral Bloch picked up here said that Sir Hubert was attempting to repair the mechanism of his craft, with which he expects to cross the north pole under the ice of the polar sea. All aboard the submarine were reported well.

DEFEAT INCOME TAX MEASURE IN HOUSE; WOULD BURDEN POOR

Utilities Measure Also
Loses Fight For
Passage

COLUMBUS, O., June 16.—The income tax measure has met its " Waterloo," it appeared today. By a vote of 39 to 69, the state house of representatives last night defeated the special joint taxation committee's proposal for an income tax on net earned incomes.

The measure went down after a vigorous two-hour debate, during which supporters of the plan contended that it was the only one in the taxation program that actually granted substantial relief to the tax burden now resting on real estate.

The income tax was also described as a necessary companion measure to the intangible tax bill which passed the legislature last week, in order to insure payment of taxes by all classes of citizen-ship.

The victorious opposition, however, declared that inasmuch as it would have required payment of taxes by single persons whose net annual income was at least $750 and married persons with yearly incomes of not less than $1,500, it was unjust in that it placed too great a tax burden upon the poor, of "those least able to pay."

The Roberts bill, raising the annual excise tax on utilities other than railroads from 1.35 to four per cent a year, lost a hard fought battle in the house last night when a motion by Rep. James A. Glenn (R) of Coshocton, to relieve the house taxation committee of the bill and to send it to the house finance committee failed to pass. The taxation committee last week refused to report the bill out for passage.

Hardings Sleep In White Grecian Temple At Home

BY GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

MARION, O., June 16.—It is a beautiful thing this white Grecian temple which the loyal friends of Warren G. Harding have erected here to his memory.

Its design is the essence of simplicity; but Harding was a simple man. There is no harshness in its lines, only the softness of the beauty that was ancient Greece. But there was little harshness about Harding. Kindly, warm-hearted, impulsive, with an inordinate fondness for the simple pleasures of life, he would have liked this marble shelter from the storms and tempests that shook his later life and career.

It was eminently fitting that the memorial to this unaffected and companionable man should have been erected here in Marion, where he lived and worked, prospered and was happy, instead of at Washington, where he labored and fretted and was unhappy. Here he was born; here are his friends; here he was "W. G." to Main St.

BLACKMAIL THEORY IN FAITHFUL CASE FATHER'S VERSION

Describes Attack On
Starr And Payment
Of Hush Money

NEW YORK, June 16.—Stanley E. Faithfull today, for the first time, gave his own version of why his beautiful and erratic step-daughter, Starr Faithfull, was murdered.

He outlined a sensational theory wherein blackmail was fixed as a motive for the crime. He opened up a hidden chapter in the tender years of the international butterfly who is the center of the current show its genesis. And he traced its operation right up to within a few hours of the fatal moment when the cultured, lovely girl was laid in the Long Beach surf, unconscious and helpless, to drown.

Police, however, continued pursuit of their own theories. Finding new impetus in the startling, if belated, revelation that Starr was dragged into a stupor before she came to her watery death, District Attorney Elvin Edwards and Inspector Harold E. King were tracing the actions of two men and a woman declared to have been the gay companions of the victim shortly before her murder.

They declined to make known the details of their new evidence. But it was deemed of such importance that the Nassau prosecutor intimated he would continue the hearing before the grand jury until Friday, and possibly until next week.

It was his hope that by then he would have sufficient material facts upon which to discard the anonymous John Doe proceedings and ask the indictment of the known killer.

Of this prospect, however, the gray-haired and harried chemist was impatient. He declared the police investigation was "getting nowhere." And seemingly eager that the mystery be cleared up, he plunged into the details of an attack on his daughter which, up until now had been the Faithfull family's greatest tragedy.

In this attack, which occurred nine years ago when the unhappy Starr was a Boston school-boy only 16 years old, lay the basis for the grim drama of the beach, he claimed.

While the assailant, whom he described as a wealthy and socially prominent man, had made retribution to Starr and her family, paying her a total of $90,000 to aid her in regaining her health, he declared others had taken up the case. Through morose mutterings dropped by the girl in moments when alcohol inflamed her brain with thoughts of the great wrong done her, the highly agitated step-father asserted that certain people built up a blackmail plot.

here are a thousand reminders of his happier times. There, a monument to his memory would have been merely another in a city that is crowded with monuments to men whose memories are well-nigh forgotten. The atmosphere is more friendly here in this Middle West that nurtured him.

The architects and his friends have done well by Warren Harding. He rests, finally, in a great circular structure of white Georgia marble in which there is not the slightest elaborate embellishment.

Forty-six sturdy pillars form the exterior colonnade. They are twenty-eight feet high and five feet in diameter. Inside these pillars circular design of twenty-two smaller ionic columns, sixteen feet in height, and two feet in diameter. These smaller columns serve the double purpose of forming the interior colonnade and supporting a terrace, from which trailing vines and blooms fall in profusion.

A greensward of myrtle covers the center of the enclosure, and here under a weeping willow tree lies the twenty-ninth President and his wife. Through the wide spaces between the pillars the Ohio winds blow all day over two tablets of Labrador granite. Beneath these tablets are the bronze caskets. The only legend of any sort about the whole edifice is the legend of one who lies below:

Warren Gamaliel Harding
Twenty-ninth President of the
United States.
Born, November 2, 1865
Died, August 2, 1923.

Florence Kling Harding
Born, August 15, 1860
Died, November 21, 1924.
1926.

That is all. No Latin, Greek or other inscriptions mark their tomb. A design of palm leaves embosses that of the late President; for Mrs. Harding there is a simple design of roses. Nothing else.

The structure is situated in a great cross of sward which is formed by trees and shrubbery. The ten-acre site is surrounded on three sides, north, east and south, by the Marion cemetery, which in his life time, as publisher of the Marion Star, the late President did much to promote as a civic beauty spot.

Across the roadway to the west, there has been purchased a seven-

BODIES OF SEVENTY BROUGHT TO NANTES

NANTES, France, June 16.—The bodies of seventy victims of the disaster to the excursion steamer St. Philibert, which sank in the Bay of Biscay with a loss of nearly 500 lives, were brought back to Nantes today from St. Nazaire.

Covered with blankets and tarpaulin the bodies arrived on military trucks. Grief-stricken crowds surrounded the lorries as they were driven slowly through the streets of this city, from which the victims, members of a working men's organization, departed in high spirits on Sunday for an outing on the island of Noirmoutiers.

The bodies were taken to the Ancient Chateau Des Ducs, where they will lie in state. Thousands of persons, including many relatives and friends of the victims, besieged the gates of the Chateau to pay last tribute to the men, women and children whose lives were snuffed out in one of the most appalling peacetime sea disasters in recent history.

STRIKES HEAD WHEN DIVING; LAWRENCE BELT FIRST VICTIM

Funeral Thursday For
Victim Claimed By
Little Miami

Lawrence Belt, 21, Alpha-Bellbrook Road, three and one-half miles north of Bellbrook, was drowned in the Little Miami River northeast of Bellbrook shortly after 8 o'clock Monday night. The fatality was the first due to drowning in Greene County this year.

The youth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Belt, had gone swimming with Jesse McClanahan, 19, at the site of the old Graff flour mill. Neither youth, it is said, was able to swim and McClanahan had cautioned his friend not to venture beyond his depth.

According to McClanahan's version of the affair, he watched his companion wade into the stream, then walked along the bank a short distance. His back was turned momentarily and when he faced around, Belt had disappeared. After waiting a few minutes for the swimmer to come to the surface, McClanahan became alarmed, jumped in Belt's auto and drove first to Bellbrook and then to the home of Belt's parents, four miles away, to summon aid.

The body was not recovered until two hours later, about 10:15 o'clock, and a gash over one eye indicated, authorities say, the youth had apparently dived into the water and had struck his head on a rock, stunning him.

Sheriff John Baughn and his chief deputy, Walton Spahr, directed the search for the body. For some time efforts to locate it were unsuccessful, despite repeated diving and the use of boats and long poles. Finally, Deputy Spahr came to Xenia and borrowed grappling hooks from the fire department, but before these could be used, the body was located with the aid of a potato fork tied to a long stick.

Howard Penick dived into the water and dragged the body to the surface. The body was in a pool twelve feet deep at a point in the river where a mill race flows into the stream, causing a treacherous undercurrent.

While efforts to locate the body were in progress, an attempt was made to rig up a temporary light line from the home of a neighbor 1,000 feet away, and this was almost completed when the body was discovered.

Belt, employed as the driver of a milk truck for Clarence Huffman, farmer living near Bellbrook, had called after work for McClanahan, who lives with his brother-in-law, Alva Patterson, residing a mile and one-half from Huffman's home. He had driven over for his friend about 7:30 o'clock.

The youth is survived by his parents and three sisters, Mrs. McKinley Durnbaugh, Zimmerman, Miss Olive, Dayton, and Miss Mary. He became 21 years old last April 14.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p. m. Thursday at the home and at 2:30 at the Mt. Zion Church, of which Belt was a member, in charge of the Rev. Arthur Leeming.

The youth was treasurer of the Young People's Society of the church. Internment will be made in the Mt. Zion Cemetery.

FOUR CONFESS SETTING FIRE IN MINE FIGHT

One Under Arrest
Admits Communist
Membership

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., June 16.—With the life of the coal mining industry of eastern Ohio hanging in the balance, Belmont County authorities today hopefully made last night in the alleged confession of four men here that they had started the fire which caused suspension of work in the Rall and Roper Coal Co.'s Big Run mine.

Miners, nearly 3000 strong who have united themselves in a tri-county strike agitation today were showing more of a semblance of order but yet were regarded as extremely threatening as they continued to enlist new sympathizers.

Big Run, arrested by Sheriff Howard Duff for their alleged arsonous activities which fired the mine house containing work clothes of nearly 500 men, Walter Lato, 17, was quoted by Sheriff Duff as having admitted he is a Communist and member of the National Miners' Union which is directing the strike.

The others also jailed on arson charges are Tony Valente, 20, Rudy Mikleslavich, 17, and Mike Viscic, 19. They told Sheriff Duff they were sympathizers, although not members of the union, and hoped to aid the strike movement by starting the fire.

PRESIDENT EXTOLS KINDLY QUALITIES AS TOMB DEDICATED

"Betrayed By Friends"
Executive Charges
In Marion Talk

MARION, O., June 16.—Over the tomb of Warren G. Harding there was spoken today a courageous defense of his maligned administration, and a magnificent tribute to his memory as a man—a man "betrayed by his friends."

Here in the shadow of the beautiful Grecian memorial which Harding's loyal friends erected to him, President Hoover broke the silence of years to extol the kindly human qualities of the twenty-ninth President and to exhort in terms of extreme bitterness those who, as he said, betrayed him.

Mr. Hoover named no names, but his reference to the oil scandals was so plain and unmistakable that no one in the vast throng had the slightest doubt who was meant.

On the platform as an interested participant in the dedicatory exercises was Calvin Coolidge, the taciturn Vermont, who early in the proceedings had himself paid high tribute to the man whom he succeeded in the presidency. Mr. Coolidge, however, made no reference to "betrayals," confining himself to a survey of the really monumental legislative record of the Harding administration.

The President's allusion to those who betrayed his predecessor came near the close of his brief address and caused a profound hush to fall over the assembly.

With every evident feeling, he told how he had been one of those who accompanied President Harding on the ill-fated Alaska trip that ended in his death, how he had observed him physically slipping, and growing more weary under the burdens imposed upon him. "And we came also to know," said Mr. Hoover, "that here was a man whose soul was being seared by a great disillusionment. We saw him gradually weakened not only from physical exhaustion but from mental anxiety."

"Warren Harding had a dim realization that he had been betrayed by a few of the men whom he had trusted, by men whom he had believed were his devoted friends."

"It was later proved in the courts of the land that these men had betrayed not alone the friendship and trust of their staunch and loyal friend but they had betrayed their country."

"That was the tragedy in the life of Warren Harding."

Then, with great deliberation and intense feeling, Mr. Hoover proceeded to blister with burning words those who prove false to a public trust.

Full Text Of President Hoover's Address At Harding Memorial

(Note—Following is the text of President Hoover's address at Marion, O., Tuesday—Ed.)

MARION, O., June 16.—"We are assembled here to dedicate the tomb of Warren G. Harding, twenty-ninth President of the United States. This beautiful monument, erected by the voluntary subscriptions of the people, symbolizes their respect for his memory. It has been their response with tender remembrance to a kindly and gentle spirit. As future years come and go each of them will be marked by gatherings here of his friends and the people of a grateful democracy, for democracy has ever paid respect and tribute to those who have given her service.

"Warren G. Harding came from the people. Born just at the close of the Civil War, it became his responsibility to lead the Republic in a period of reconstruction from another great war in which our democracy had again demonstrated its unalterable resolve to withstand encroachment upon its independence and to deserve the respect of the world.

"Great as are the problems of the conflict the burden of state-ship are equally difficult in the rehabilitation of social and economic life after the dislocation of war. Above all, the burden is heavy in composing the hates and prejudices which smoulder and threaten long after the formal documents of peace are signed.

"As the aftermath of war our national finances were disorganized, taxes were overwhelming, agriculture and business were prostrate, and unemployment widespread. Our country was torn with injustices to those racial groups of our own citizens descended from the enemy nations. Violent bitterness had arisen over the treaty of Versailles.

"These evil spirits aroused by war, augmented by inestimable losses, deep animosities, the dislocations of industry, the vast unemployment in a world still armed and arming confronted Warren G. Harding. He brought to the office of president a long experience in public affairs together with the character and spirit of which the Republic was then in need. His was a mind and character fitted for a task where the one transcendent need was the healing quality of gentleness and friendliness. It was his mission to compose the prejudices and conflicts at home, to lessen the threats of renewed wars through the world, he succeeded in those tasks. When in two years he died, new peace treaties had been made in terms which won the support of our people; tranquility had been restored at home; employment had been renewed and a long period of prosperity had begun.

"And he succeeded further. The Washington arms conference for the reduction and limitation of armaments identified his administration with the first step in history toward disarmament of the world. That step was accompanied by the momentous treaties which restored good will among the nations bordering upon the pacific ocean and gave to all the world the inestimable blessings of peace and security.

"The new and changing problems of later years have not obscured the many other constructive acts of his administration. The reorganization and reduction of the public debt, the reduction in taxation by the creation of the budget system, the better organization of industry and employment, new services to agriculture, the establishment of a permanent system of care for disabled veterans and their dependents—are but some of the enlightened measures which he inspired and advanced.

"But this is neither the time nor place in historic retrospect to catalogue his many services to our country. They will be recorded and gratefully remembered by his countrymen.

"Our thoughts today turn to the man himself. My first meeting with Warren Harding ever flingers in my memory. It was during the war and in a time of the greatest strain and anxiety. Late one evening I then Senator Harding, whom I had never met, came to my office.

"When he was announced there flashed into my mind the thought that here was some complaint or a request for some action. I had just wanted you to know that if you wish the help of a friend, telephone me what you want. I am there to serve and to help." That statement, I came to learn, was typical of him. I refer to it now because it reveals the nature of the man.

"I was one of those who accompanied the late President on his fateful trip across the continent and to Alaska. He had wished to learn from the people their needs and to translate to them his own aspirations. Those who were his companions on that journey realized full well that he had overstrained even his robust strength in the gigantic task which confronted him during the previous two years. And we came also to know that here was a man whose soul was being seared by a great disillusionment. We saw him gradually weakened not only from physical exhaustion but from mental anxiety. Warren Harding had a dim realization that he had been betrayed by a few of the men whom he had trusted, by men whom he had believed were his devoted friends. It was later proved in the courts of the land that these men had betrayed not alone the friendship and trust of their staunch and loyal friend but they had betrayed their country. That was the tragedy of the life of Warren Harding.

"There are disloyalties and there are crimes which shock our sensibilities, which may bring suffering upon those who are touched by their immediate results. But there is no disloyalty and no crime in all the category of human weaknesses which compares with the failure of probity in the conduct of public trust. Monetary loss or even the shock to moral sensibilities is perhaps a passing thing, but the breaking down of the faith of a people in the honesty of their government and in the integrity of their institutions, the lowering of

REID VISITS FAMILY SEAT

New York Publisher And Wife Spend Sunday Afternoon At Old Reid Homestead

FOR the first time since his boyhood, Ogden Mills Reid, editor of the New York Herald-Tribune, visited the Reid homestead near Cedarville, birthplace of his illustrious father, Whitelaw Reid, Sunday afternoon, it became known Tuesday.

The distinguished New York journalist, who delivered the address at the commencement of Miami University at Oxford, O., Monday, had been expected to pay a visit to the Reid estate, but he had not announced his plans and citizens of the village had not been apprised of his coming Sunday.

Accompanied by his wife, Mr. Reid arrived at the Reid homestead about 12 o'clock and remained until 4:30 p. m. Coming almost unheralded, no reception of even an informal nature could be arranged in his honor; and Mr. and Mrs. Reid spent the afternoon quietly inspecting the picturesque old estate, now the property of Ogden Reid, who had not seen it since he was 12 years of age.

William Conley, manager of the estate, who lives at his own home in Cedarville, had been notified through a telephone message Sunday morning that Mr. and Mrs. Reid planned to arrive in Cedarville about noon. Upon their arrival, the Reids had luncheon with Mr. and Mrs. Conley and with Conley's son, Wilbur, and family, who live at the homestead.

The Reids motored from Oxford, O., and during the afternoon they inspected the grounds and buildings on the estate. Mr. Reid also made it a point to visit the graves of his grandparents, who are buried in the old Massie's Creek Cemetery.

Besides the commencement address, the New York editor also spoke at a press luncheon at Oxford Monday, the luncheon and meeting being given in honor of the memory of Ohio's most famous journalist, Whitelaw Reid, a graduate of Miami University seventy-five years ago.

Karl Bull, publisher of the Cedarville Herald, weekly newspaper, and Mrs. Bull, and Mr. and Mrs. William Conley, Cedarville, caretakers of the Reid estate, were guests at the luncheon.

Mr. Reid is said to have expressed regret that his visit to the Reid estate was of necessity so brief, but declared that he was happy to have had the opportunity to visit the homestead once again after so long an absence, was delighted with the appearance of everything and said he hoped to return again soon.

cope with the inevitable commotion Al causes in his court appearances, more frequent in recent weeks than heretofore. District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson made a request to Acting Police Commissioner Alcock for a force of police squads and deputies to patrol the federal building.

Johnson, with an array of legal talent, was ready to start the fight to put the king of Chicago's underworld behind the bars. Three tax experts worked on the income tax indictment. Samuel Clawson, Dwight H. Green and Jacob I. Grossman.

Victor La Rue is in charge of the liquor conspiracy case. In the background, supervising all, is Elmer L. Irey, chief of the intelligence unit of the internal revenue department, said to be here at the insistence of President Hoover and Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury.

While Deputy Marshall Edward King and Special Agent Elliot Ness were rounding up the other sixty-eight defendants in the conspiracy, Jack Heinan, one of Capone's henchmen, surrendered. His appearance and Capone's today, gives the government the two defendants necessary in a conspiracy.

Judge Wilkerson may set both trial dates today.

TEXT OF PRESIDENT HOOVER'S ADDRESS

respect for the standards of honor which prevail in high places, are crimes for which punishment can never atone.

"Warren Harding gave his life in worthy accomplishment for his country. He was a man of delicate sense of honor, of sympathetic heart, of transcendent gentleness of soul—who reached out for friendship who gave of it lavishly and generously in his every thought and deed. He was a man of passionate patriotism. He was a man of deep religious feeling. He was devoted to his fellow men. No revelation of his character can equal that of his own words just before his death. They were a part of his last public statement. I quote: "We need less of sectarianism, less of denominationalism, less of fanatical zeal and its exactions and more of the Christ spirit, more of the Christ practice, and a new and abiding consecration and reverence of God."

"I am a confirmed optimist as to the growth of the spirit of brotherhood. . . . We do rise to heights at times when we look for the good rather than the evil in others, and give consideration to the views of all. The inherent love of fellowship is banding men together, and when envy and suspicion are vanquished, fraternity records a triumph and brotherhood springs new blessings to men and to peoples. . . . Christ was the prince of peace, and we who seek to render his name glorious must move in the ways of peace and brotherhood and living service."

"He gave his life in that spirit, and in that spirit we pay tribute to his memory."

What is the effect of irritation upon the throat? Here are the exact words of a noted authority retained by us to study this question. He writes—

"First, the vocal chords, on account of their delicacy of structure, would be the first tissues to give indication of irritation, evidenced by the huskiness of the smoker's voice, the result of relaxed tension and slower vibration of the vocal chords. The next site of irritation would be the tissues adjacent to the vocal chords comprising the larynx, therefore the general focal point of the irritation would be in the voice box represented externally by the Adam's Apple."

So—Consider your Adam's Apple. Be careful in your choice of cigarettes. Don't rasp your throat with harsh irritants. Reach for a LUCKY instead.

SECOND PLACERS IN TENTH INNING RALLY TO SNARE OVERTIME

Avenge Old Defeat; Score
Four Times In
Extra Stanza

Playing its third extra inning game of the season, the Downtown Country Club softball team extended its winning streak to four games and crept to within half a game of the league-leading Lang Chevroleters by vanquishing Wood's Barbers, 9 to 5 in a ten-inning National League contest at Cox Field Monday night.

The Downtowners selected the first half of the tenth inning with the score tied at 5 to 5 as the appropriate spot and setting for a four-run winning rally, three singles and a like number of errors producing the quartet of tallies.

The triumph enabled the second-placers to square accounts with the Barbers for a 10 to 9 drubbing imposed when the teams clashed during the first round of play.

The D. T. C. Club trailed Wood's during the first six innings. The Barbers jumped into an immediate lead by scoring twice in the first stanza on an error, a hit by Mendenhall, sacrifice fly and an out at first, and added two more in the third on singles by Kelter and Shaw, the runners scoring after the catches when Mendenhall and N. Murrell drove fly balls to the outfield. The last tally for Wood's came in the fifth when Holten clouted a homer with the bases empty.

Held hitless for three rounds, the Downtowners got two runs back in the fourth on an error, single by Higgins, force out and a hit by Frame. They evened the count in the seventh, scoring three times on Eckler's single, a pass to Finlay, an error and Huston's timely double.

In the first half of the tenth Prugh and Huston led off with singles, but Prugh was nipped at the plate on LeSourd's roller. Higgins was safe on an error, McCurran singled, and Frame reached first on an error. Hyman was retired at first, unassisted, but Eckler was also given a life on an error and four runs were in.

The winners outlived the Barbers by the bare margin of one blow, ten to nine, Clarence Kelter, pitching for Wood's, was troubled by a sore arm but the Downtowners had difficulty getting safe hits off the ball as it came lobbing slowly over the plate.

"Bud" Shoup, "rookie" outfielder for the Downtowners, roamed far and wide in the short field position, apprehending no less than seven fly balls without a slip. Holten, shortstop for Wood's, led both teams at bat with a home run and two singles in four times up. Lineups:

HITS ENLIVEN GAME WON BY MT. TABOR

A deluge of thirty-four hits enlivened a freethinking game won by the Mt. Tabor softball team from the Second U. P. Church team of Xenia by a score of 18 to 14 on the Mt. Tabor diamond Monday night. Mt. Tabor rapped out twenty hits and the losers, fourteen.

B. Bickett, pitching for the church team, and Thomas, hurling for Mt. Tabor, both survived the bombardment to the finish. Despite the heavy clubbing, the contest was exciting because of the frequency with which the lead changed hands.

R. Ferguson, first baseman for the visiting team, clouted the only home run, his circuit blow coming with two runners on the paths in the fourth inning. Mt. Tabor will play a game with a Gundersville team at Mt. Tabor Friday evening. Score by innings: Second U. P. 4 0 0 5 2 2 0 1 0-14 Mt. Tabor 3 4 0 6 2 1 4 3 1 x-18 Batteries: Xenia-B. Bickett and H. NEW YORK June 16.—Eight persons were injured and an undetermined number bruised and shaken when a New York, New Haven and Hartford train jumped the tracks at the Woodlawn Station in the Bronx today. The passenger train, after leaving its tracks, sideswiped a freight car and then crashed against a steel pillar. The eight believed seriously injured were taken from the cars unconscious. It was believed there were no fatalities.

FRENCH UNEASY

Paris promptly interprets the so-called "Anglo-German rapprochement" as a plot against the peace and safety of France. The visit of Brüning and Curtius to London, their conferences with members of the British government, their reception by King George, all take on a threatening and nefarious aspect when viewed through Gallic eyes.

It is not easy to tell whether this reaction in the French capital is predominately the result of the working of a persecution complex or which people in that part of the world have become victims, or whether it is more generally the result of the working of uneasy consciences.

From time to time the French government has been quite nasty in its attitude toward the British government. Readers will remember that in the years immediately following the war period, there were moments when British-French friendship suffered considerable strain on that account.

At the same time France has shown little disposition to be friendly with the Teutons. The aloofness has been natural, and is not to be criticized except where it has become unreasonable. But it was bound to have certain definite results. The row which Paris raised recently over the proposed German-Austrian economic union would, in the French view of things, naturally create resentment against Paris in Berlin. It is easy to understand that the French, feeling that they have given cause, should imagine a result.

However, the outside world will be slow to discover in the friendly gestures between London and Berlin anything malign or any expression of enmity or ill will toward Paris. None the less the attitude in the French capital must be reckoned with, because it has a tendency to hinder effective handling of important world matters.

The visit of the German officials to London and their solicitation of a return call, were the result of a desire to get concessions in connection with reparations payments. But in a large way, it also was indicative of a return of some of the spirit of international amity among nations lately pitted against one another in the world's greatest war. The journeys of Mr. Mellon and Mr. Stimson to the old world, and the calls they may be expected to make there will, in an ordinary course of events, accentuate this development.

Opportunity for forgetfulness of injuries and enmities opens up also opportunity for mutual helpfulness in practical fields of human relationships.

There is even a chance that the visits of today may assist in working out arms reduction plans and better economic relations tomorrow. And while Italy may be a trifle cynical, France only is actually bawky—except, of course, Russia.

France, unfortunately, retains its old pettishness and attitude of insistence that everything which is done must be done for its benefit. It has the same non-co-operative spirit that showed itself in an opposition to Mr. Kellogg's plan for making the outlawry of war a general world movement instead of a close corporation bilateral agreement between Paris and Washington. France talks continually of international obligation, but seems at bottom to have less sense of such obligation than almost any other country inside the pale of civilization.

ATHLETE'S FOOT

If you are minus an attack of "athlete's foot," you aren't in it. The affliction attained real prominence in this part of the world only a short time ago, but it promises to attain a vogue exceeding that of any other popular disorder. It spreads like bad news.

In case you do not know yet just what athlete's foot is, learn that it has nothing to do with the result of physical exercise, but is a new and improved form of ringworm, improved because it is not actually caused by the active "worm" but is the product of a fungus growth that shows great ingenuity and "adaptability." Scientifically the disorder is known as "dermatophytosis," and in various parts of the world, for it is found nearly everywhere, is also called Hongkong foot, toe ring worm and barcoorot.

This new affliction, which has fastened itself upon the members of the human race for their annoyance and edification, recently received some extended attention from Dr. F. D. Wideman, of the University of Pennsylvania, who explained its peculiarities and habits to the members of the American Medical association.

It seems that several sorts of fungi are capable of producing athlete's foot. Some look like berry bushes (under the microscope), some look like reeds, some will grow on wool, feathers and shoe leather, and even out of cracks in porcelain tiling as well as on the human epidermis. The parasite is more partial to young people than to old, although both babies and octogenarians are subject to it, and it has an especial affection for toes, but doesn't confine itself to any part of the body. Some cases may be cured, some decline to get well. If you have one sort, you can get rid of your trouble, though perhaps you will have to burn all your clothes to do it; if you have another sort, you simply emulate Job.

Nobody knows how the playful fungi which are causing all this trouble originated. The doctors only know that monkeys are afflicted by it, but whether that is an argument in favor of the theory of evolution the learned gentlemen do not say.

No sooner does somebody produce and commercialize a big, benevolent invention than the legislative bodies are forced to get busy passing laws to prevent it from becoming a nuisance.

The news that the elephant has practically disappeared from 1,000,000 square miles of territory in Africa, is a striking proof of the continuing stupidity and brutality of man.

The visiting British lecturer who thinks that Americans have a bored look should not judge them solely by their expressions while facing him.

They used to talk about the "rule of reason," but that was long ago before the primary election system got in its deadly work.

Why not gather up the pacifists and ship them to Russia, just as lady bugs are shipped to pest-infested regions.

A person who plays politics is a person who is on the opposite side in a political fight.

It is wise to make haste gradually in acquiring the regular summer coat of tan.

The Chelsea cement plant is now due to go the hard way.

"Sluggishness of liver should never be mistaken for purity of heart."—Rev. Dr. Henry Howard.

MISPLACED PITY
Father William E. Cashin, twelve years chaplain at Sing Sing, now pastor of St. Andrew's, just back of the Municipal Building, down near the Brooklyn Bridge, looks back over his decade-and-two-year sojourn with the failures of the criminal world and voices the belief that there is too much sympathy squandered by mankind in general on those Who Get Caught.

"It would be a fine study for someone to make," he says, "if they were to look into the question of how criminality has been placed on a business basis in this country. If you were to look into the surety bond business, you might find that no matter how much a criminal steals nobody loses but himself."

"And then you might make an inquiry into the growth of law enforcement. It would be a fine study for someone to find out how much the police force costs in New York City, the millions of dollars, and then ask how all those men could earn that much money enforcing the law if there were no criminals to enforce it against."

"And then it would be a fine study for someone to look into this welfare business. You might find that it is the business of the welfare workers to make a man feel that no matter what he does he is a victim of circumstances and needs help rather than any punishment."

"That is what I mean when I say that there is too much sympathy for criminals in the world!" Father Cashin spends most of his time getting jobs for ex-cons and passing out money to them. But you can't get him to peep on stuff like that.

"There is too much sympathy for criminals in the world!"

GOING ONE BETTER
One of New York's Big Bill and Prescription Men is quoted as saying that the best reducing system is described in four words: "No more, thank you."

An improvement on that would be: "Not any, thank you."

IT IS TO LAUGH
Paul Poirot, Big Boss Parisian dressmaker, retired some years ago from what he calls the "rag business." Then he went back into it again because, as he expressed it, he was "tick of seeing nothing but legs—legs—legs."
He was going to correct all that. Paul was going to popularize a "new creation" that would hide "zorse ugly legs."
He has done his dunce; but still it's "legs—legs—legs."
Why didn't Paul Poirot succeed? Why didn't the Kaiser take Paris?

THE DEBTOR'S PRISON—1931

HURLEY BEST PROSPECT FOR VICE PRESIDENCY IF CURTIS WITHDRAWS

CHARLES F. STEWART

WASHINGTON. — Unless Vice President Charles Curtis chooses to run again in second place on the Republican national ticket, Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley looks like the best bet as the G. O. P.'s nominee for the role of White House understudy at next year's convention.

The impression is pretty strong that Curtis will decide to seek his old seat in the senate at the 1932 election.

On this subject the administration's emotions are understood to be somewhat mixed. It never has been much of a secret that the group closest to Mr. Hoover would have preferred a different vice presidential candidate in 1928 and does not want the same selection to be made a second time. Nevertheless, the suggestion will be rather obvious that the Kansas has no doubt of a national Republican victory a year from the coming autumn if, of his own initiative, he lets a renomination for a $15,000 job go into the discard, to make sure of a senator's $10,000.

Perhaps it would be more strictly accurate to say that, in case Charles Curtis drops out, Secretary Hurley probably will be Mr. Hoover's vice presidential choice, rather than that he will be the G. O. P. managers'.

However, it comes to the same thing. Upon his first nomination a presidential candidate seldom is sure enough of himself until the last minute to have much to say concerning the selection of his running mate, but upon his renomination his wishes practically always are decisive; the party machinery is in his hands and it works as he dictates.

Not, indeed, that there seems to be any objection to Hurley on the part of administration lieutenants. On the contrary, he is fairly popular.

His rise in presidential favor, at any rate, has been very rapid. He has, for one thing, a reputation for blind obedience to orders.

As possibilities who are not at all probable, a number are referred to occasionally—Senators Arthur Capper of Kansas, Charles L. McNary of Oregon and Simeon D. Fess of Ohio, Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde, General John J. Pershing, Governor Louis L. Engle of Illinois, ex-Assistant Secretary of War Hanford MacNider, now minister to Canada; General James G. Harbord, retired, now president of the Radio Corporation of America, and Representative Hamilton Fish, Jr., of the Twenty-sixth New York congressional district, just north of Westchester.

Senator Capper obviously would not do directly after Charles Curtis—too much Kansas. McNary's and Hyde's claims both are based on what they have done for the farmers. McNary as chairman of the senate committee on agriculture.

Fess, besides being G. O. P. national chairman, is, like Emerson, notable as a dry, which alone makes them undesirable on a dry ticket; it needs more variety.

Pershing doubtless would be a strong candidate if he cared to run, but the political impression is that he would not consider a nomination. MacNider, as a forceful character and former American Legion commander, might be formidable at the psychological moment, but he neglected them. Harbord seems uninterested. Fish's support is from ultra-anti-reds.

Senator Dwight W. Morrow of New Jersey is another who classes as a major possibility. A fourth is Representative John Q. Tilson of Connecticut, G. O. P. leader in the lower house of congress and one of next winter's candidates for speaker.

Both being wets, like young Teddy Roosevelt, either one would serve equally well to balance the ticket on the prohibition issue with the dry Mr. Hoover—that is, if he runs as dryly as the dries expect him to do.

Senator Morrow probably cares little for the nomination, having more important prospects in the office. Colonel Tilson wants it.

Postmaster General Walter F. Brown is perhaps suggested with sufficient frequency to belong in the major class. His state is pivotal, to be sure. There appears to be no other special reason to account for him.

Cabbage With Cheese Sauce.—One medium-sized head of cabbage, four tablespoons flour, four tablespoons butter or other fat, two cups milk, one-half teaspoon salt, one cup grated cheese. Cook the cabbage in boiling salted water until just tender. The length of time depends upon the size of pieces (cut into quarters or eighths, the cabbage should cook in 15 minutes or less). Prepare a sauce of the flour, fat, milk and salt, cooking in a double boiler. When the sauce is cooked, add the grated cheese, stirring until melted. Pour the sauce over the drained cabbage and serve. To make cabbage au gratin put the cooked cabbage in a greased baking dish, pour over the sauce, cover with buttered bread crumbs, and bake for about 20 minutes in a moderate oven, or until the crumbs are a golden brown.

Cream of Vegetable Soup.—Two tablespoons finely chopped rutabaga turnip, two tablespoons finely chopped carrots, two tablespoons finely chopped onion, two tablespoons melted fat, one tablespoon flour, one quart milk, one and one-half teaspoons salt. Cook the finely chopped vegetables in the fat for 10 minutes, add the milk, and stir until all are well blended. In the meantime heat the milk in a double boiler, add a little of it to the vegetable mixture, stir well, combine with the rest of the milk, add the salt, and cook for 10 minutes. The flavor is improved if the soup is allowed to stand for a short time to blend before serving. Reheat and serve.

Migraine Commonest of Headaches

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Of chronic headaches, migraine is one of its many forms is probably the commonest. Sometimes it is called sick headache, because there are usually symptoms of digestive upset that go with it, especially nausea, possibly even vomiting. When these digestive symptoms overshadow the headache the patient often calls them attacks of biliousness. I learned several years ago that patients who use the old, and among medical men discarded, term biliousness and say they are subject to biliousness, really have abdominal migraine.

Migraine is a peculiar constitutional disease which afflicts certain people, and visits them in attacks. It usually begins at about the age of 15 or 20 and lasts until about the age of 40 or 50, when it often goes away, never to return. The attacks come on once a week or once a fortnight, or once a month, or two or three times a year, the time varying with different individuals.

A typical attack can usually be predicted by the victim. There may be spots before the eyes, or the sound of ringing bells in the ears, or of fullness in the abdomen. These preliminary warnings are quite varied, but the victim always knows the headache will come on a few hours afterward. The headache itself is often on one side of the head; it is accompanied by nausea, and sometimes vomiting and a feeling as if the stomach and bowels were absolutely paralyzed. On account of these digestive symptoms the victim usually ascribes it to poisoning from the intestinal tract and blames something in the diet, but this is undeserved. Varying the diet is not calculated to stop the attacks.

It is a mysterious disease. And aside from the known fact that it is hereditary and runs in families, we know little or nothing about its causes. Of its hereditary nature there is no doubt whatever. It has been traced in one instance through five generations, one or more members of the family in each generation being subject to attacks.

Treatment has not been conspicuously successful. Much can be done to moderate the discomfort of the attack itself, but prevention of recurrences cannot be assured to anyone. Diet has been found to be of little value. It is important, however, for the patient to be warned against getting on a one-sided, unbalanced diet or a starvation diet in the idea that the attacks are due to food poisoning or digestive upsets. Radical treatments of all kinds should be regarded with suspicion. Rosy hopes aroused of cure by removal of the gallbladder have been in most instances disappointments.

The best results in the prevention of recurrent attacks have been from the injection in the veins of foreign proteins, particularly peptones. The treatment must, of course, be conducted under the direction of a physician. In many cases a course of treatments of this sort has banished the disease for years.

For treatment of the acute attack many patients have the experience that if they can get a cathartic to act in the early stages before the bowels become paralyzed the attack will be aborted. For relief of the headache itself every patient has his or her own favorite remedy, most of them based on the formula of the familiar "migraine" tablets, to be found in any drug store.

Think Lovesick Girl Little Fool

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"DEAREST VIRGINIA LEE: My girl friend is very much in love with a boy who has 'turned her down.' She loves him so much that she is making a little fool of herself. She telephones him at his home and is always seen where she expects to find him.

"She has written him notes and letters which he shows to his friends and calls them 'mushy.'"

"She also had one of her intimate friends write to him and ask him to take her to a picnic. Dear Virginia, how can I make her see her mistake in running after him? Should I tell her how her letters are being treated?"

"LILAC."

Yes, I think you had better tell her how her letters are being treated. Lilac. The shock may show her how foolishly she is acting and also what a cad the boy is whom she thinks she loves.

That is one reason why, when girls write me that they are madly in love but that the boy doesn't seem to notice them, that I always advise them very emphatically to do nothing but to face the fact bravely and try to interest themselves in something else. Nothing is more hopeless and humiliating for a girl than this cheapening herself by running after a man. She makes herself ever so much less desirable in the eyes of everyone who knows about it. A few may pity her, but so peculiar is humanity constituted that most, even those of her own sex, despise her.

It never pays for a girl, anyway, to wear her heart on her sleeve. The daws are sure to take a peck at it.

GEORGETTE: I think I would forgive the fiancé, Georgette, as marry him.

Massaging Gums Is Healthful

By GLADYS GLAD

In India, it is said, our modern version of the toothbrush is more or less of a rarity. The people of that country use the "Baval" stick for cleansing their teeth—a stick that is made from the twig of the Baval tree. One end of the twig is frayed and the stick is used in this form for the brushing.

Our present tooth brushing implements are without question far superior to devices employed by the inhabitants of India. But many of us fail to obtain the full benefits from our toothbrushes correctly.

The toothbrush today has a dual role to perform. It was originally created for the sole purpose of cleansing the teeth. And many of us still use it for this purpose alone. But the toothbrush should also be used as an implement for massaging the gums. Pale, colorless, receding gums are as unhealthy as they are unattractive. And to keep them firm, healthy and coral pink, daily massaging is of the utmost importance.

A daily massaging of the gums is particularly essential for us moderns, because of the large percentage of concentrated foods that our diet contains. Primitive people ate food that had healthy teeth and gums because they had to do some pretty thorough chewing if they wished to keep from starving. But we eat so many soft foods that we do not provide our teeth and gums with sufficient exercise to keep them firm and healthy.

Massage your gums every day, if you wish to preserve an attractive pink setting for your teeth. Stir up a brisk circulation of the blood through them. You may brush and massage your gums at the same time as you cleanse your teeth. Or, as some dentists advise, you may use one of those small rubber brushes, and massage your gums with it after your toothbrushing has been completed.

Also, make it a practice to include in your daily diet some foods that will provide exercise for your teeth and gums. Eat hard foods, fibrous foods that require thorough chewing. Crisp breads, such as crisp toast or rusks, hard rolls, celery, fibrous vegetables, and whole apples are particularly effective in furnishing the teeth and gums with the exercise that is so essential to their health, and consequently to their loveliness.

SECOND PLACERS IN TENTH INNING RALLY TO SNARE OVERTIME

Avenge Old Defeat; Score
Four Times In
Extra Stanza

Playing its third extra inning game of the season, the Downtown Country Club softball team extended its winning streak to four games and crept to within half a game of the league-leading Lang Chevrolet by vanquishing Wood's Barbers, 9 to 5 in a ten-inning National League contest at Cox Field Monday night.

The Downtowners selected the first half of the tenth inning with the score tied at 5 to 5 as the appropriate spot and setting for a four-run winning rally, three singles and a like number of errors producing the quartet of tallies.

The triumph enabled the second-placers to square accounts with the Barbers for a 10 to 9 drubbing imposed when the teams clashed during the first round of play.

The D. T. C. Club trailed Wood's during the first six innings. The Barbers jumped into an immediate lead by scoring twice in the first stanza on an error, a hit by Mendenhall, sacrifice fly and an out at first, and added two more in the third on singles by Kelter and Shaw, the runners scoring after the catches when Mendenhall and N. Murrell drove fly balls to the outfield. The last tally for Wood's came in the fifth when Holten clouted a homer with the bases empty.

Held hitless for three rounds, the Downtowners got two runs back in the fourth on an error single by Higgins, force out and a hit by Frame. They evened the count in the seventh, scoring three times on Eckler's single, a pass to Finlay, an error and Huston's timely double.

In the first half of the tenth Prugh and Huston led off with singles, but Prugh was nipped at the plate on LeSourd's roller. Higgins was safe on an error, McCurrin singled, and Frame reached first on an error. Hyman was retired at first, unassisted, but Eckler was also given a life on an error and four runs were in.

The winners outlived the Barbers by the bare margin of one blow to nine. Clarence Kelter, pitcher for Wood's, was troubled by a sore arm but the Downtowners had difficulty getting safe hits off the ball as it came lobbing slowly over the plate.

"Bud" Shoup, "rookie" outfielder for the Downtowners, roamed far and wide in the short field position, apprehending no less than seven fly balls without a slip. Holten, shortstop for Wood's, led both teams at bat with a home run and two singles in four times up.

HITS ENLIVEN GAME WON BY MT. TABOR

A deluge of thirty-four hits enlivened a freighting game won by the Mt. Tabor softball team from the Second U. P. Church team of Xenia by a score of 18 to 14 on the Mt. Tabor diamond Monday night. Mt. Tabor rapped out twenty hits and the losers, fourteen.

B. Bickett, pitching for the church team, and Thomas, hurling for Mt. Tabor, both survived the bombardment to the finish. Despite the heavy clubbing, the contest was exciting because of the frequency with which the lead changed hands.

R. Ferguson, first baseman for the visiting team, clouted the only home run, his circuit blow coming with two runners on the paths in the fourth inning.

Mt. Tabor will play a game with a Gunnersville team at Mt. Tabor Friday evening. Score by innings:

Mt. Tabor 3 4 0 2 1 4 3 1 x-18

In default of payment of the fine and costs, he was ordered sent to jail.

LEGION JUNIORS AGAIN DEFEATED

The Xenia Cities Service Junior American Legion baseball team accepted its third consecutive defeat Sunday afternoon, losing to Troy Legion Juniors, 9 to 5 on the Kil Kare Park diamond.

The Xenia nine obtained twelve hits as compared with only five for the visitors, but errors and careless base running, together with six walks issued by local pitchers, were responsible for the many Trojan runs and the few produced by the Foody Post boys.

Tate started on the mound for Xenia but was assaulted for five runs in the opening stanza and was jerked in favor of Reeves in the second inning. Weller was behind the plate until the seventh when he was replaced by "Whitey" Glenn. Carl Shafer pitched for Troy. He exhibited good control and a fine curve ball.

Rain interrupted the contest at the close of the first inning, but after an hour of waiting, play was resumed and the nine-inning contest completed.

The Theater

If you are going to New York on your vacation this summer, or plan to stop there on an Eastern trip, you will find music and limb-flinging as the torrid-weather dish for the tired Broadwayite during the hot months.

The seasonal cycle of dancing, sketches, skits, and the glorified vaudeville that go to make up summer musicals, is at hand. In the vanguard is "The Third Little Show", presented by Dwight Deere Wiman and Tom

BEATRICE LILLIE

Weatherly and "Rhapsody in Black", produced by Lew Leslie, who glorifies the colored beauties. Beatrice Lillie, the British aristocrat who loves to clown and Ethel Waters, the brown-tinted lass who loves to croon, are the shining lights of these pieces.

The "Little Show" has grown up. It is no longer the satyr making faces at things that are but shouldn't be. It has graduated to a pretentious caravansary of entertainment with expensive play-wrights contributing sketches, highly-paid guest performers and a long list of songs and skits draped around the antics of Miss Lillie.

The comedienne, in a sketch called "The Late Comer," mirrors the lady who has seen the picture at the movies before. In "Cinema Lorelei" she philosophizes on the phenomenon that most of the pictures of Marlene Dietrich, the German star, appear to include her lovely legs.

And still on the theme of pictures, there is a tricky song called "I'll Putcha Pitcha in the Paper," Miss Lillie's travesty on the im-mortal Ruth Drapers "Railway Station on the Western Plains" is reported to be the best of the numbers.

In addition to the wit and comies of Lady Peel there is flashy dancing by Carl Randall, amusement by

"Rhapsody in Black" is as different as black from white compared to any other Negro show. It is akin to a choral recital, primed with spirituals, adaptations of foreign music and swinging dance movements.

Ethel Waters sings best "Where's My Prince Charming" and "You Can't Stop Me From Loving You." This show is much too solemn for the imprisoned rhythm of the Negro race. The tired business man is very tired this year and should have his dancing—and fast—

And speaking of the tired business man, they are saying now that times are so bad the telephone girls are giving you two wrong numbers for one nickel.

TAX FREE DEPOSITS

"The Home Of Thrift"

If that part of the new tax law which concerns building association deposits, just passed by the Legislature, receives the approval of the Governor and becomes a law, the building associations will be able to pay the tax and thus furnish their patrons a tax free investment.

This is a long desired accomplishment and it has been freely predicted that it will bring to the associations of Ohio all of the money that they can profitably use and that it will presently reduce the cost of money to the hundreds of thousands of people who are acquiring homes through the associations.

A tax free investment, amply secured by first mortgages and safety reserves, and giving the returns and conveniences afforded by the associations, will assume an enviable position in the field of finance.

BANDITS WHO ROBBED OHIO BANK CAPTURED AND LOOT RECOVERED

Three Gunmen Held
After Hold-Up In
Wild West Style

GEORGETOWN, O., June 15.—Captured as they made a desperate attempt to escape a posse by crossing the Ohio River in a boat at Camp Ohio, three men, who police say robbed the Higginsport Citizens Bank near here, were held under close guard in the Brown County jail here today.

Two of the captured trio gave their names as Howard Bowman, 26, and Neil Bowman, 22, his brother. The third said he was Lyle Cornell, 23, of Texas. The Bowman's said they were from Portland, O.

Although they denied any connection with the notorious Bowman gang that has terrorized Southern Ohio with a long string of daring and sensational bank robberies, Sheriff John E. Neu of Brown County, said it was possible that they were the same.

The trio was captured shortly after the Higginsport bank was held up and robbed of about $6,000. The loot was recovered with the apprehension of the three men, police said.

The holdup of the Higginsport bank was staged in "wild west" fashion with the bandits virtually "shooting up the town." One man, Louis Schneck of Higginsport, was wounded in the gunplay. He was shot in the right leg.

Only two persons were in the bank when the bandits boldly raided the institution. They were C. B. Williams, cashier, and Miss Mary Waterfield, a clerk. Both were forced into a teller's cage while the bandits scooped up all available cash.

Leaving a trail of gunfire behind them, the bandits fled. In their haste to get away, the bandits dropped $20,000 in currency. Two Higginsport citizens, Robert Cahill and Ross Seddon, who saw the bandits leaving the bank, opened fire with revolvers. One of the shots struck the man identified as Cornell.

A posse was organized and the fleeing bandits were chased to a hill between Felicity and Rural, where they were surrounded. They managed to elude the searchers, however, stealing a truck and driving madly toward the Ohio River. The posse took up the chase again and caught up with the fugitives just as they were attempting to pull a rowboat into the river and escape into Kentucky. Threatened with gunfire, the bandits surrendered.

CHICAGO, June 16.—Three laborers in a leaky rowboat without oars today were the heroes of an unassuming rescue of two young men and a girl whose motorboat had capsized in Lake Michigan, half a mile out.

Paddling with their hands the three men made two trips to the disabled boat and on the second trip when their weight was about to sink the rowboat they swam in to give the half-drowned man who could not swim a chance.

The workmen departed without disclosing their names.

SUB IS MOVING SLOWLY TO PORT

Wilkins Attempts To
Repair Damage

COBH, Ireland, June 16.—Inhabitants of this port today were eagerly anticipating the arrival of Sir Hubert Wilkins' polar submarine Nautilus which was being towed here by the American battleship Wyoming.

According to latest reports, however, it will take at least a week for the underwater craft to arrive at this port. She was proceeding today in this direction at the rate of about eight knots per hour.

When the Nautilus arrives off Cobh, a local tug will be set out to relieve the Wyoming of her tow, permitting the battleship to proceed to Copenhagen where she and the Arkansas are due June 23.

The latest wireless message from Admiral Bloch picked up here said that Sir Hubert was attempting to repair the mechanism of his craft, with which he expects to cross the north pole under the ice of the polar sea. All aboard the submarine were reported well.

DEFEAT INCOME TAX MEASURE IN HOUSE; WOULD BURDEN POOR

Utilities Measure Also
Loses Fight For
Passage

COLUMBUS, O., June 16.—The income tax measure has met its Waterloo. It appeared today.

By a vote of 39 to 69, the state house of representatives last night defeated the special joint taxation committee's proposal for an income tax on net earned incomes.

The measure went down after a vigorous two-hour debate, during which supporters of the plan contended that it was the only one in the taxation program that actually granted substantial relief to the tax burden now resting on real estate.

The income tax was also described as a necessary companion measure to the intangible tax bill which passed the legislature last week, in order to insure payment of taxes by all classes of citizenship.

The victorious opposition, however, declared that inasmuch as it would have required payment of taxes by single persons whose net annual income was at least $750 and married persons with yearly incomes of not less than $1,500, it was unjust in that it placed too great a tax burden upon the poor.

The Roberts bill, raising the annual excise tax on utilities other than railroads from 1.35 to four per cent a year, lost a hard fought battle in the house last night when a motion by Rep. James A. Glenn (R) of Coshocton, to relieve the house taxation committee of the bill and to send it to the house finance committee failed to pass.

The taxation committee last week refused to report the bill out for passage.

Hardings Sleep In White Grecian Temple At Home

BY GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

MARION, O., June 16.—It is a beautiful thing this white Grecian temple which the loyal friends of Warren G. Harding have erected here to his memory.

Its design is the essence of simplicity; but Harding was a simple man. There is no harshness in its lines, only the softness of the beauty that was ancient Greece. But there was little harshness about Harding. Kindly, warm-hearted, impulsive, with an ordinate fondness for the simple pleasures of life, he would have liked this marble shelter from the storms and tempests that shook his later life and career.

It was eminently fitting that the memorial to this unaffected and companionable man should have been erected here in Marion, where he lived and worked, prospered and was happy, instead of at Washington, where he labored and fretted and was unhappy. Here he was born; here are his friends; here he was "W. G." to Main St.

There are a thousand reminders of his happier times. There, a monument to his memory would have been merely another in a city that is crowded with monuments to men whose memories are well-nigh forgotten. The atmosphere is more friendly here to this Middle West that nurtured him.

The architects and his friends have done well by Warren Harding. He rests, finally, in a great circular structure of white Georgia marble in which there is not the slightest elaborate embellishment.

Forty-six sturdy pillars form the exterior colonnade. They are twenty-eight feet high and five feet in diameter. Inside these pillars circular design of twenty-two smaller ionic columns, sixteen feet in height, and two feet in diameter. These smaller columns serve the double purpose of forming the interior colonnade and supporting a terrace, from which trailing vines and blooms fall in profusion.

A greenward of myrtle covers the center of the enclosure, and here under a weeping willow tree lies the twenty-ninth President and his wife. Through the wide spaces between the pillars the Ohio winds blow all day over two tablets of Labrador granite. Beneath these tablets are the bronze caskets. The only legend of any sort about the whole edifice is the legend of one who lies below:

Warren Gamaliel Harding
Twenty-ninth President of the
United States
Born, November 2, 1865
Died, August 2, 1923.

Florence Kling Harding
Born, August 15, 1860
Died, November 21, 1924.
1926.

That is all. No Latin, Greek or other inscriptions mark their tomb. A design of palm leaves embosses that of the late President; for Mrs. Harding there is a simple design of roses. Nothing else.

The structure is situated in a great cross of sward which is formed by trees and shrubbery. The ten-acre site is surrounded on three sides, north, east and south, by the Marion cemetery, which in his life time, a publisher of the Marion Star, the late President did much to promote as a civic beauty spot.

Across the roadway to the west, there has been purchased a seven-

BODIES OF SEVENTY BROUGHT TO NANTES

NANTES, France, June 16.—The bodies of seventy victims of the disaster to the excursion steamer St. Philbert, which sank in the Bay of Biscay with a loss of nearly 500 lives, were brought back to Nantes today from St. Nazaire.

Covered with blankets and tarpaulin the bodies arrived on military trucks. Grief-stricken crowds surrounded the lorries as they were driven slowly through the streets of this city, from which the victims, members of a working men's organization, departed in men's treacherous, departed in men's treacherous, departed in men's treacherous.

The bodies were taken to the Ancient Chateau Des Ducs, where they will lie in state. Thousands of persons, including many relatives and friends of the victims, besieged the gates of the Chateau to pay last tribute to the men, women and children whose lives were snuffed out in one of the most appalling peacetime sea disasters in recent history.

STRIKES HEAD WHEN DIVING; LAWRENCE BELT FIRST VICTIM

Funeral Thursday For
Victim Claimed By
Little Miami

Lawrence Belt, 21, Alpha-Bellbrook Road, three and one-half miles north of Bellbrook, was drowned in the Little Miami River northeast of Bellbrook shortly after 8 o'clock Monday night. The fatality was the first due to drowning in Greene County this year.

The youth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Belt, had gone swimming with Jesse McClanahan, 19, at the site of the old Graff flour mill. Neither youth, it is said, was able to swim and McClanahan had cautioned his friend not to venture beyond his depth.

According to McClanahan's version of the affair, he watched his companion wade into the stream, then walked along the bank a short distance. His back was turned momentarily and when he faced around, Belt had disappeared. After waiting a few minutes for the swimmer to come to the surface, McClanahan became alarmed, jumped in Belt's auto and drove first to Bellbrook and then to the home of Belt's parents, four miles away, to summon aid.

The body was not recovered until two hours later, about 10:15 o'clock, and a gash over one eye indicated, authorities say, the youth had apparently dived into the water and had struck his head on a rock, stunning him.

Sheriff John Baughn, and his chief deputy, Walton Spahr, directed the search for the body. For some time efforts to locate it were unsuccessful, despite repeated diving and the use of boats and long poles. Finally, Deputy Spahr came to Xenia and borrowed grappling hook from the fire department, but before these could be used, the body was located with the aid of a potato fork tied to a long stick.

Howard Penwell dived into the water and dragged the body to the surface. The body was in a pool twelve feet deep at a point in the river where a mill race flourishes into the stream, causing a treacherous undercurrent.

While efforts to locate the body were in progress, an attempt was made to rig up a temporary light line from the home of a neighbor 1,000 feet away, and this was almost completed when the body was discovered.

Belt, employed as the driver of a milk truck for Clarence Huffman, farmer living near Bellbrook, had called after work for McClanahan, who lives with his brother-in-law, Alva Patterson, residing a mile and one-half from Huffman's home. He had driven over for his friend about 7:30 o'clock.

The youth is survived by his parents and three sisters, Mrs. McKinley Durnbaugh, Zimmerman, Miss Olive, Dayton, and Miss Mary, at home. He became 21 years old last April 14.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p. m. Thursday at the home and at 2:30 at the Mt. Zion Church, of which Belt was a member, in charge of the Rev. Arthur Leeming. The youth was treasurer of the Young People's Society of the church. Interment will be made in the Mt. Zion Cemetery.

ANARCHISTS BOMB CITY AS REPRISAL

BUENOS AIRES, June 16.—More than twenty anarchist bombs exploded in various parts of the city shortly after midnight today.

No deaths were reported and the damage was slight. The bombs were reprisals for police efforts during the past week to clean up evildoers of anarchists and other radicals.

PRESIDENT EXTOLS KINDLY QUALITIES AS TOMB DEDICATED

"Betrayed By Friends"
Executive Charges
In Marion Talk

MARION, O., June 16.—Over the tomb of Warren G. Harding there was spoken today a courageous defense of his maligned administration, and a magnificent tribute to his memory as a man—a man "betrayed by his friends."

Here in the shadow of the beautiful Grecian memorial which Harding's loyal friends erected to him, President Hoover broke the silence of years to extol the kindly human qualities of the twenty-ninth President and to exhort in terms of extreme bitterness those who, as he said, betrayed him.

Mr. Hoover named no names, but his reference to the oil scandals was so plain and unmistakable that no one in the vast throng had the slightest doubt who was meant.

On the platform as an interested participant in the dedicatory exercises was Calvin Coolidge, the taciturn Vermont, who early in the proceedings had himself paid high tribute to the man whom he succeeded in the presidency. Mr. Coolidge, however, made no reference to "betrayals," confining himself to a survey of the really monumental legislative record of the Harding administration.

The President's allusion to those who betrayed his predecessor came near the close of his brief address and caused a profound hush to fall over the assembly.

With very evident feeling, he told how he had been one of those who accompanied President Harding on the ill-fated Alaska trip that ended in his death, how he had observed him physically slipping, and growing more weary under the burdens imposed upon him.

"And we came also to know," said Mr. Hoover, "that there was a man whose soul was seared by a great disillusionment. We saw him gradually weaken not only from physical exhaustion but from mental anxiety."

"Warren Harding had a dim realization that he had been betrayed by a few of the men whom he had trusted, by men whom he had believed were his devoted friends."

"It was later proved in the courts of the land that these men had betrayed not alone the friendship and trust of their staunch and loyal friend but they had betrayed their country."

"That was the tragedy in the life of Warren Harding."

Then, with great deliberation and intense feeling, Mr. Hoover proceeded to blister with burning words those who prove false to a public trust.

"There are," he continued, "disloyalties and there are crimes which shock our sensibilities, which may bring suffering upon those who are touched by their."

ATTORNEY WILL PLEAD CAPONE NOT GUILTY TO FEDERAL INDICTMENTS

CHICAGO, June 16.—A statement that he would plead Al Capone not guilty to charges of conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws and evasion of income tax, unless plans are altered at the last minute, was made today by William F. Waugh, the gangster's attorney.

Capone was to appear before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson at 2 p. m. today to be arraigned on two indictments.

America's greatest outlaw is charged with failure to pay income taxes of $213,000 between 1924 and 1929 and with 5,000 violations of the liquor laws over a ten-year period in the largest conspiracy against prohibition yet uncovered.

Last night, "Scarface Al" was reported to be in conference with his attorney on what legal steps to take to stave off a jail sentence, seemingly inevitable, as long as possible.

FOUR CONFESS SETTING FIRE IN MINE FIGHT

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., June 16.—With the life of the coal mining industry in eastern Ohio hanging in the balance, Belmont County authorities today hopefully made the most of an advantage gained last night in the alleged confession of four men here that they had started the fire which caused suspension of work in the Rail and River Coal Co.'s Big Run mine.

Miners, nearly 3,000 strong who have united themselves in a tri-county strike agitation today were showing more of a semblance of order but yet were regarded as extremely threatening as they continued to enlist new sympathizers.

Of the four men, residents of Big Run, arrested by Sheriff Howard Duff for their alleged arsonous activities which fired the mine wash house containing work clothing of nearly 500 men, Walter Latos, 17, was quoted by Sheriff Duff as having admitted he is a Communist and member of the National Miners' Union which is directing the strike.

The others also jailed on arson charges are Tony Valetto, 20; Rudy Mikeshinavich, 17, and Mike Vianle, 19. They told Sheriff Duff they were sympathizers, although not members of the union, and hoped to aid the strike movement by starting the fire.

Full Text Of President Hoover's Address At Harding Memorial

MARION, O., June 16.—"We are assembled here to dedicate the tomb of Warren G. Harding, twenty-ninth President of the United States. This beautiful monument, erected by the voluntary subscriptions of the people, symbolizes their respect for his memory. It has been their response with tender remembrance to a kindly and gentle spirit. As future years come and go each of them will be marked by gatherings here of his friends and the people of a grateful democracy, for democracy has ever paid respect and tribute to those who have given her service."

Warren G. Harding came from the people. Born just at the close of the Civil War, it became his responsibility to lead the Republic in a period of reconstruction from another great war in which our democracy had again demonstrated its unalterable resolve to withstand encroachment upon its independence and to deserve the respect of the world.

"Great as are the problems of the conflict the burden of statesmanship is equally difficult in the rehabilitation of social and economic life after the dislocation of war. Above all, the burden is heavy in composing the hates and prejudices which smoulder and threaten long after the formal documents of peace are signed."

"As the aftermath of war our national finances were disorganized, taxes were overwhelming, agriculture and business were prostrate, and unemployment wide-spread. Our country was torn with injustices to those racial groups of our own citizens despoiled by the enemy nations. Violent bitterness had arisen over the treaty of Versailles."

"These evil spirits aroused by war, augmented by inestimable losses, deep animosities, the dislocation of industry, the vast unemployment in a world still armed and armed confronted Warren G. Harding. He brought to the office of president a long experience in public affairs together with the character and spirit of which the Republic was then in need. His was a mind and character fitted for a task where the one transcendent need was the healing quality of gentleness and friendliness. It was his mission to compose the prejudices and conflicts at home, to lessen the threats of renewed war through the world, he succeeded in those tasks. When in two years he died, new peace treaties had been made in terms good will among the nations bordering upon the Pacific Ocean and peace had begun."

"And he succeeded further. The Washington arms conference for the reduction and limitation of battleships identified his administration with the first step in history toward disarmament of the world. That step was accompanied by the momentous treaties which restored good will among the nations bordering upon the Pacific Ocean and gave to all the world inestimable blessings of peace and security."

"Our thoughts today turn to the man himself. Mr. Harding's life was a life of service to his country. He was a man of many years have not obscured the many other constructive acts of his administration. The reorganization and reduction of the public debt, the reduction in taxation, the creation of the budget system, the better organization of industry and employment, new services to agriculture, the establishment of a permanent system of care for disabled veterans and their dependents—are but some of the enlightened measures which he inspired and advanced."

"But this is neither the time nor place in historic retrospect to catalogue his many services to our country. They will be recorded and gratefully remembered by his countrymen."

REID VISITS FAMILY SEAT

New York Publisher And Wife Spend Sunday Afternoon At Old Reid Homestead

FOR the first time since his boyhood, Ogden Mills Reid, editor of the New York Herald-Tribune, visited the Reid homestead near Cedarville, birthplace of his illustrious father, Whitelaw Reid, Sunday afternoon. It became known Tuesday.

The distinguished New York journalist, who delivered the address at the commencement of Miami University at Oxford, O., Monday, had been expected to pay a visit to the Reid estate, but he had not announced his plans and citizens of the village had not been apprised of his coming Sunday.

Accompanied by his wife, Mr. Reid arrived at the Reid homestead about 12 o'clock and remained until 4:30 p. m. Coming almost unheralded, no reception of even an informal nature could be arranged in his honor; and Mr. and Mrs. Reid spent the afternoon quietly inspecting the picturesque old estate, now the property of Ogden Reid, who had not seen it since he was 12 years of age.

William Conley, manager of the estate, who lives at his own home in Cedarville, had been notified through a telephone message Sunday morning that Mr. and Mrs. Reid planned to arrive in Cedarville about noon. Upon their arrival, the Reids had luncheon with Mr. and Mrs. Conley and with Conley's son, Wilbur, and family, who live at the homestead.

The Reids motored from Oxford, O., and during the afternoon they inspected the grounds and buildings on the estate. Mr. Reid also made it a point to visit the graves of his grandparents, who are buried in the old Massie's Creek Cemetery.

Besides the commencement address, the New York editor also spoke at a press luncheon at Oxford Monday, the luncheon and meeting being given in honor of the memory of Ohio's most famous journalist, Whitelaw Reid, a graduate of Miami University seventy-five years ago.

Karl Bull, publisher of the Cedarville Herald, weekly newspaper, and Mrs. Bull, and Mr. and Mrs. William Conley, Cedarville, caretakers of the Reid estate, were guests at the luncheon.

Mr. Reid is said to have expressed regret that his visit to the Reid estate was of necessity so brief, but declared that he was happy to have had the opportunity to visit the homestead once again after so long an absence, was delighted with the appearance of everything and said he hoped to return again soon.

cope with the inevitable commotion Al causes in his court appearances, more frequent in recent weeks than heretofore. District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson made a request to Acting Police Commissioner Alcock for a force of police squads and deputies to patrol the federal building.

Johnson, with an array of legal talent, was ready to start the fight to put the king of Chicago's underworld behind the bars. Three tax experts worked on the income tax indictment. Samuel Clawson, Dwight H. Green and Jacob I. Grossman.

Victor La Rue is in charge of the liquor conspiracy case. In the background, supervising all, is Elmer L. Irey, chief of the intelligence unit of the internal revenue department, said to be here at the insistence of President Hoover and Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury.

While Deputy Marshall Edward King and Special Agent Elliot Nease were rounding up the other sixty-eight defendants in the conspiracy, Jack Heiman, one of Capone's henchmen, surrendered. His appearance and Capone's today, gives the government the two defendants necessary in a conspiracy.

Judge Wilkinson may set both trial dates today.

respect for the standards of honor which prevail in high places, are crimes for which punishment can never atone.

Warren Harding gave his life in worthy accomplishment for his country. He was a man of delicate sense of honor, of sympathetic heart, of transcendent gentleness of soul—who reached out for friendship, who gave of it loyally and generously in his every thought and deed. He was a man of passionate patriotism. He was a man of deep religious feeling. He was devoted to his fellow men. No revelation of his character can equal that of his own words just before his death. They were a part of his last public statement. I quote:

"We need less of sectarianism, less of denominationalism, less of fanatical zeal and its exactions and more of the Christ spirit, more of the Christ practice, and a new and abiding consecration and reverence of God."

"I am a confirmed optimist as to the growth of the spirit of brotherhood. . . . We do rise to heights at times when we look for the good rather than the evil in others, and give consideration to the views of all. The inherent love of fellowship is banding men together, and when envy and suspicion are vanquished, fraternity records a triumph and brotherhood springs new blessings to men and to peoples. . . . Christ was the prince of peace, and we who seek to render his name glorious must move in the ways of peace and brotherhood and living service."

"He gave his life in that spirit, and in that spirit we pay tribute to his memory."

What is the effect of irritation upon the throat? Here are the exact words of a noted authority retained by us to study this question. He writes—

"First, the vocal chords, on account of their delicacy of structure, would be the first tissues to give indication of irritation, evidenced by the huskiness of the smoker's voice, the result of relaxed tension and slower vibration of the vocal chords. The next site of irritation would be the tissues adjacent to the vocal chords comprising the larynx, therefore the general focal point of the irritation would be in the voice box represented externally by the Adam's Apple."

So—Consider your Adam's Apple. Be careful in your choice of cigarettes. Don't rasp your throat with harsh irritants. Reach for a LUCKY instead.

FRENCH UNEASY

Paris promptly interprets the so-called "Anglo-German rapprochement" as a plot against the peace and safety of France. The visit of Brüning and Curtius to London, their conferences with members of the British government, their reception by King George, all take on a threatening and nefarious aspect when viewed through Gallic eyes.

It is not easy to tell whether this reaction in the French capital is predominately the result of the working of a persecution complex which people in that part of the world have become victims, or whether it is more generally the result of the working of uneasy consciences.

From time to time the French government has been quite nasty in its attitude toward the British government. Readers will remember that in the years immediately following the war period, there were moments when British-French friendship suffered considerable strain on that account.

At the same time France has shown little disposition to be friendly with the Teutons. The aloofness has been natural, and is not to be criticized except where it has become unreasonable. But it was bound to have certain definite results. The row which Paris raised recently over the proposed German-Austrian economic union would, in the French view of things, naturally create resentment against Paris in Berlin. It is easy to understand that the French, feeling that they have given cause, should imagine a result.

However, the outside world will be slow to discover in the friendly gestures between London and Berlin anything malign or any expression of enmity or ill will toward Paris. None the less the attitude in the French capital must be reckoned with, because it has a tendency to hinder effective handling of important world matters.

The visit of the German officials to London and their solicitation of a return call, were the result of a desire to get concessions in connection with reparations payments. But in a large way, it also was indicative of a return of some of the spirit of international amity among nations lately pitted against one another in the world's greatest war. The journeys of Mr. Mellon and Mr. Stimson to the old world, and the calls they may be expected to make there will, in an ordinary course of events, accentuate this development.

Opportunity for forgetfulness of injuries and enmities opens up also opportunity for mutual helpfulness in practical fields of human relationships.

There is even a chance that the visits of today may assist in working out arms reduction plans and better economic relations tomorrow. And while Italy may be a trifle cynical, France only is actually balky—except, of course, Russia.

France, unfortunately, retains its old pettishness and attitude of insistence that everything which is done must be done for its benefit. It has the same non-co-operative spirit that showed itself in an opposition to Mr. Kellogg's plan for making the outlawry of war a general world movement instead of a close corporation bilateral agreement between Paris and Washington. France talks continually of international obligation, but seems at bottom to have less sense of such obligation than almost any other country inside the pale of civilization.

ATHLETE'S FOOT

If you are minus an attack of "athlete's foot," you aren't in it. The affliction attained real prominence in this part of the world only a short time ago, but it promises to attain a vogue exceeding that of any other popular disorder. It spreads like bad news.

In case you do not know yet just what athlete's foot is, learn that it has nothing to do with the result of physical exercise, but is a new and improved form of ringworm, improved because it is not actually caused by the active "worm" but is the product of a fungus growth that shows great ingenuity and adaptability. Scientifically the disorder is known as "dermatophytosis," and in various parts of the world, for it is found nearly everywhere, is also called Hongkong foot, toe ring worm and barcoort.

This new affliction, which has fastened itself upon the members of the human race for their annoyance and edification, recently received some extended attention from Dr. F. D. Weidman, of the University of Pennsylvania, who explained its peculiarities and habits to the members of the American Medical association.

It seems that several sorts of fungi are capable of producing athlete's foot. Some look like berry bushes (under the microscope), some look like reeds, some will grow on wool, feathers and shoe leather, and even out of cracks in porcelain tiling as well as on the human epidermis. The parasite is more partial to young people than to old, although both babies and octogenarians are subject to it, and it has an especial affection for toes, but doesn't confine itself to any part of the body. Some cases may be cured, some decline to get well. If you have one sort, you can get rid of your trouble, though perhaps you will have to burn all your clothes to do it; if you have another sort, you simply emulate Job.

Nobody knows how the playful fungi which are causing all this trouble originated. The doctors only know that monkeys are afflicted by it, but whether that is an argument in favor of the theory of evolution the learned gentlemen do not say.

No sooner does somebody produce and commercialize a big, benevolent invention than the legislative bodies are forced to get busy passing laws to prevent it from becoming a nuisance.

The news that the elephant has practically disappeared from 1,000,000 square miles of territory in Africa, is a striking proof of the continuing stupidity and brutality of man.

The visiting British lecturer who thinks that Americans have a bored look should not judge them solely by their expressions while facing him.

They used to talk about the "rule of reason," but that was long ago before the primary election system got in its deadly work.

Why not gather up the pacifists and ship them to Russia, just as lady bugs are shipped to pest-infected regions.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK — "More than a restaurant—an institution," is the remark made by a sign in the window of a Sixth Ave. eatery. And to offset this, a competitor across the way has hung out a shingle on which is inscribed: "A thousand for a Nickel."

PROLONGED AGONY
"When I buy a short story that's no good," says a magazine editor, "it appears in only one issue and I'm able to forget it. But when I make a mistake on a serial it nearly drives me crazy because it keeps slapping me in the face month after month."

INCOMPLETE JOB
"Those of us who add to our facial beauty," says New York's leading Beauty Co., "are helping to rid the world of its drabness."
Yeah, but it's still pretty drab in spots, girlie.

ILLUSTRIOUS LINES
"Sluggishness of liver should never be mistaken for purity of heart,"—Rev. Dr. Henry Howard.

MISPLACED PITY
Father William E. Cashin, twelve years chaplain at Sing Sing, now pastor of St. Andrew's, just back of the Municipal Building down near the Brooklyn Bridge, looks back over his decade-and-two-year sojourn with the failures of the criminal world and voices the belief that there is too much sympathy squandered by mankind in general on Those Who Get Caught.

"It would be a fine study for someone to make," he says, "if they were to look into the question of how criminality has been placed on a business basis in this country. If you were to look into the surety bond business you might find that no matter how much a criminal steals nobody loses but himself."

"And then you might make an inquiry into the growth of law enforcement. It would be a fine study for someone to find out how much the police force costs in New York City, the millions of dollars, and then ask how all those men could earn that much money enforcing the law if there were no criminals to enforce it against."

"And then it would be a fine study for someone to look into this welfare business. You might find that it is the business of the welfare workers to make a man feel that no matter what he does he is a victim of circumstances and needs help rather than any punishment."

"That is what I mean when I say that there is too much sympathy for criminals in the world!" Father Cashin spends most of his time getting jobs for ex-cons and passing out money to them. But you can't get him to peep on stuff like that.

"There is too much sympathy for criminals in the world!"
GOING ONE BETTER
One of New York's Big Bill and Prescription Men is quoted as saying that the best reducing system is described in four words: "No more, thank you."

IT IS TO LAUGH
Paul Poirot, Big Boss Parisian dressmaker, retired some years ago from what he calls the "rag business." Then he went back into it again because, as he expressed it, he was "sick of seeing nothing but legs—legs—legs."
He was going to correct all that. Paul was going to popularize a "new creation" that would hide "zany ugly legs."
He has done his damndest; but still it's "legs—legs—legs."
Why didn't Paul Poirot succeed? Why didn't the Kaiser take Paris?

THE DEBTOR'S PRISON—1931

HURLEY BEST PROSPECT FOR VICE PRESIDENCY IF CURTIS WITHDRAWS

CHARLES F. STEWART

WASHINGTON. — Unless Vice President Charles Curtis chooses to run again in second place on the Republican national ticket, Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley looks like the best bet as the G. O. P.'s nominee for the role of White House understudy at next year's convention.

The impression is pretty strong that Curtis will decide to seek his old seat in the senate at the 1932 election.

On this subject the administration's emotions are understood to be somewhat mixed. It never has been much of a secret that the group closest to Mr. Hoover would have preferred a different presidential candidate in 1928 and does not want the same selection to be made a second time. Nevertheless, the suggestion will be rather obvious that the Kansas has his doubts of a national Republican victory a year from the coming autumn if, of his own initiative, he lets a renomination for a $15,000 job go into the discard, to make surer of a senator's $10,000.

Perhaps it would be more strictly accurate to say that, in case Charles Curtis drops out, Secretary Hurley probably will be Mr. Hoover's vice presidential choice, rather than that he will be the G. O. P.'s managers.

However, it comes to the same thing. Upon his first nomination a presidential candidate seldom is sure enough of himself until the last minute to have much to say concerning the selection of his running mate, but upon his renomination his wishes practically always are decisive; the party machinery is in his hands and it works as he dictates.

Not, indeed, that there seems to be any objection to the selection of an administration lieutenant. On the contrary, he is fairly popular.

His rise in presidential favor, at any rate, has been very rapid. He has, for one thing, a reputation for blind obedience to orders.

And Mr. Hoover, on his side, has a reputation for demanding his orders' execution exactly as he issues them, with no "ifs," "ands" or argument whatever.

The war secretary also is a nice guy for the vice presidency—just over 48.

He makes a fine appearance and has considerable money.

Next after Secretary Hurley, young Theodore Roosevelt, governor of Porto Rico, is vice presidential most frequently mentioned by Republican politicians.

His name and ancestry, of course, have a lot to do with it. Besides, his geography is good—better than Pat Hurley's. New York versus Oklahoma—no need to state which is the better worth pleasing. He is a wet, likewise, which need not be emphasized, but might be helpful.

Young Teddy is supposed to be slated for the governor generalship of the Philippines. However, Dwight D. Davis has not resigned yet.

Senator Dwight W. Morrow of New Jersey is another who classes as a major possibility. A fourth is Representative John Q. Tilson of Connecticut, G. O. P. leader in the lower house of congress and one of next winter's candidates for speaker.

Both being wets, like young Teddy Roosevelt, either one would serve equally well to balance the ticket on the prohibition issue with the dry Mr. Hoover—that is, if he runs as dry as the dries expect him to do.

Senator Morrow probably cares little for the nomination, having more important prospects in the offing. Colonel Tilson wants it.

Postmaster General Walter F. Brown is perhaps suggested with sufficient frequency to belong in the major class. His state is pivotal, to be sure. There appears to be no other special reason to account for him.

As possibilities who are not at all probable, a number are referred to occasionally—Senators Arthur Capper of Kansas, Charles L. McNary of Oregon and Simeon D. Fess of Ohio, Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde, General John J. Pershing, Governor Louis L. Emerson of Illinois, ex-Assistant Secretary of War Hanford MacNider, now minister to Canada; General James G. Harbord, retired, now president of the Radio Corporation of America, and Representative Hamilton Fish, Jr., of the Twenty-sixth New York congressional district, just north of Westchester.

Senator Capper obviously would not do directly after Charles Curtis—too much Kansas. McNary's and Hyde's claims both are based on what they have done for the farmers. McNary as chairman of the senate committee on agriculture. Fess, besides being G. O. P. national chairman, is, like Emerson, notable as a dry, which alone makes them undesirable on a dry ticket; it needs more variety.

Pershing doubtless would be a strong candidate if he cared to run, but the political impression is that he would not consider a nomination. MacNider, as a forceful character and former American Legion commander, might be formidable, had he pushed his chances at the psychological moment, but he neglected them. Harbord seems uninterested. Fish's support is from untrusty anti-reeds.

Cabbage With Cheese Sauce.—One medium-sized head of cabbage, four tablespoons flour, four tablespoons butter or other fat, two cups milk, one-half teaspoon salt, one cup grated cheese. Cook the cabbage in boiling salted water until just tender. The length of time depends upon the size of pieces (cut into quarters or eighths, the cabbage should cook in 15 minutes or less). Prepare a sauce of the flour, fat, milk and salt, cooking in a double boiler. When the sauce is cooked, add the grated cheese, stirring until melted. Pour the sauce over the drained cabbage and serve. To make cabbage au gratin put the cooked cabbage in a greased baking dish, pour over the sauce, cover with buttered bread crumbs and bake for about 20 minutes in a moderate oven, or until the crumbs are a golden brown.

Cream of Vegetable Soup.—Two tablespoons finely chopped rutabaga turnip, two tablespoons finely chopped carrots, two tablespoons finely chopped onion, two tablespoons melted fat, one tablespoon flour, one quart milk, one and one-half teaspoons salt. Cook the finely chopped vegetables in the fat for 10 minutes, add the milk, and stir until all are well blended. In the meantime heat the milk in a double boiler, add a little of the vegetable mixture, stir well, combine with the rest of the milk, add the salt, and cook for 10 minutes. The flavor is improved if the soup is allowed to stand for a short time to blend before serving. Reheat and serve.

Migraine Commonest of Headaches

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Of chronic headaches, migraine is one of its many forms is probably the commonest. Sometimes it is called sick headache, because there are usually symptoms of digestive upset that go with it, especially nausea, possibly even vomiting. When these digestive symptoms overshadow the headache the patient often calls them attacks of biliousness. I learned several years ago that patients who use the old, and among medical men discarded, term biliousness and say they are subject to biliousness, really have abdominal migraine.

Migraine is a peculiar constitutional disease which afflicts certain people, and visits them in attacks. It usually begins at about the age of 15 or 20 and lasts until about the age of 40 or 50, when it often goes away, never to return. The attacks come on once a week or once a fortnight, or once a month, or two or three times a year, the time varying with different individuals.

A typical attack can usually be predicted by the victim. There may be spots before the eyes, or the sound of ringing bells in the ears, or of fullness in the abdomen. These preliminary warnings are quite varied, but the victim always knows the headache will come on a few hours afterward. The headache itself is often on one side of the head; it is accompanied by nausea, and sometimes vomiting and a feeling as if the stomach and bowels were absolutely paralyzed. On account of these digestive symptoms the victim usually ascribes it to poisoning from the intestinal tract and blames something in the diet, but this is undeserved. Varying the diet is not calculated to stop the attacks.

It is a mysterious disease. And aside from the known fact that it is hereditary and runs in families, we know little or nothing about its causes. Of its hereditary nature there is no doubt whatever. It has been traced in one instance through five generations, one or more members of the family in each generation being subject to attacks.

Treatment has not been conspicuously successful. Much can be done to moderate the discomfort of the attack itself, but prevention of recurrences cannot be assured to anyone. Diet has been found to be of little value. It is important, however, for the patient to be warned against getting on a one-sided, unbalanced diet or a starvation diet in the idea that the attacks are due to food poisoning or digestive upsets. Radical treatments of all kinds should be regarded with suspicion. Rosy hopes aroused of cure by removal of the gallbladder have been in most instances disappointments.

The best results in the prevention of recurrent attacks have been from the injection in the veins of foreign proteins, particularly peptone. The treatment must, of course, be conducted under the direction of a physician. In many cases a course of treatments of this sort has banished the disease for years.

For treatment of the acute attack many patients have the experience that if they can get a cathartic to act in the early stages before the bowels become paralyzed the attack will be aborted. For relief of the headache itself every patient has his or her own favorite remedy, most of them based on the formula of the familiar "migraine" tablets, to be found in any drug store.

Editor's Note: Six pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin for each and a self-addressed, stamped envelope, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper, or Central Press Association, 1435 East Twelfth Street, Cleveland, O. Think Lovesick Girl Little Fool

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"DEAREST VIRGINIA LEE: My girl friend is very much in love with a boy who has 'turned her down.' She loves him so much that she is making a little fool of herself. She telephones him at his home and is always seen where she expects to find him."

"She has written him notes and letters which he shows to his friends and calls them 'mushy.'"

"She also had one of her intimate friends write to him and ask him to take her to a picnic. Dear Virginia, how can I make her see her mistake in running after him? Should I tell her how her letters are being treated?"

"LILAC."

Yes, I think you had better tell her how her letters are being treated. Lilac. The shock may show her how foolishly she is acting and also what a cad the boy is whom she thinks she loves.

That is one reason why, when girls write me that they are madly in love but that the boy doesn't seem interested in them that I always advise them very emphatically to do nothing but to face the fact bravely and try to interest themselves in something else. Nothing is more hopeless and humiliating for a girl than this cheapening herself by running after a man. She makes herself ever so much less desirable in his eyes and ridiculous in those of everyone who knows about it. It is humanity constituted that most, even those of her own sex, despise her.

It never pays for a girl, anyway, to wear her heart on her sleeve. The daws are sure to take a peck at it.

Massaging Gums Is Healthful

By GLADYS GLAD

In India, it is said, our modern version of the toothbrush is more or less of a rarity. The people of that country use the "Baval" stick for cleansing their teeth—a stick that is made from the twig of the Baval tree. One end of the twig is frayed and the stick is used in this form for the brushing.

Our present tooth brushing implements are without question far superior to devices employed by the inhabitants of India. But many of us fail to obtain the full benefits from our toothbrushes correctly.

The toothbrush today has a dual role to perform. It was originally created for the sole purpose of cleansing the teeth. And many of us still use it for this purpose alone. But the toothbrush should also be used as an implement for massaging the gums. Pale, colorless, receding gums are as unhealthy as they are unattractive. And to keep them firm, healthy and coral pink, daily massaging is of the utmost importance.

A daily massaging of the gums is particularly essential for us moderns, because of the large percentage of concentrated foods that our diet contains. Primitive people always had healthy teeth and gums because they had to do some pretty thorough chewing if they wished to keep from starving. But we eat so many soft foods that we do not provide our teeth and gums with sufficient exercise to keep them firm and healthy.

Massage your gums every day. If you wish to preserve an attractive pink setting for your teeth. Stir up a brisk circulation of the blood through them. You may brush and massage your gums at the same time as you cleanse your teeth. Or, as some dentists advise, you may use one of those small rubber brushes, and massage your gums with it after your toothbrushing has been completed.

Also, make it a practice to include in your daily diet some foods that will provide exercise for your teeth and gums. Eat hard foods, fibrous foods that require thorough chewing. Crusty foods, such as crisp toast or rusks, hard rolls, celery, fibrous vegetables, and whole apples are particularly effective in furnishing the teeth and gums with the exercise that is so essential to their health, and consequently to their loveliness.

Well, our only comment is that it served Wally Roetger right. He should have known better. He should have known that a player wearing a Cincinnati uniform cannot perform seasonally for long without being traded. Maybe, though, Wally was wise. For now he has become affiliated with a champion ball club and may get a share of the world series dough.

Roetger, slugging outfielder for the Reds, was unexpectedly traded by President Sidney Weil Monday for Taylor Douthitt, veteran outfielder for the St. Louis Cardinals, and a "cash consideration."

The amount of cash involved in the transaction was not disclosed but the sum was probably considerable. The trade was a last-minute one as Monday was the deadline for all major league trading for this year.

The deal was altogether surprising and does not seem justified, except possibly to the Cincinnati club's president, who apparently intends to recoup lost finances if possible, even at the expense of breaking up a winning ball club. And the Reds are a winning team just at present.

Roetger, one year younger than Douthitt but with two years less experience in the big leagues, had been a sensation this season. He made his major league debut with the Cardinals, but was traded to New York and this year was sent to Cincinnati. Counting Sunday's game, Wally was pounding the ball at a .352 clip.

Douthitt has been hitting well all this season, having a mark of .331 and he has a reputation as a great fly chaser. Nevertheless, the trade was astonishing and may prove a disappointment.

John "Pepper" Martin, who batted and fielded seasonally when Douthitt was forced out of the game by injuries early in the season, will take over Taylor's berth in center field for the Cards, and Roetger will be used in reserve. It is said, held in reserve, it is said. How are you going to keep a .352 hitter on the bench for long?

Just in case it may have slipped the memory of local softball teams, Monday, June 15, was the deadline date for trading softball players in the two local leagues. From now on local teams must worry along with what players they now have. Now that the date for exchanging players has expired, Mr. Jones, outfielder for Krippendorf, can no longer be traded back and forth with the Graham Paints a pastime which was in vogue early in the season.

The first woman owner of a big league baseball club is dead at her home in Milwaukee, Wis. Mrs. Florence Killilea Booley, 28, former owner and president of the Milwaukee club of the American Baseball Association, passed away Monday after a brief illness.

She inherited the club from her father, Henry J. Killilea, one of the organizers of the American League, upon his death in January 1929.

From that time until November, 1930 Mrs. Booley was the only woman owner of a league ball club.

LEGION JUNIORS AGAIN DEFEATED

The Xenia City Service Junior American Legion baseball team accepted its third consecutive defeat Sunday afternoon, losing to Troy Legion Juniors, 9 to 5 on the Kil Kare Park diamond.

The Xenia nine obtained twelve hits as compared with only five for the visitors, but errors and careless base running together with six walks issued by local pitchers, were responsible for the many Trojan runs and the few produced by the Foody Post boys.

Tate started on the mound for Xenia but was assailed for five runs in the opening stanza and was jerked in favor of Reeves in the second inning. Weller was behind the plate until the seventh when he was replaced by "Whitey" Glenn. Carl Shaffer pitched control and a fine game ball.

Rain interrupted the contest at the close of the first inning, but after an interval of waiting, play was resumed and the nine-inning contest completed.

ALLGYER HEARD AT CEDARVILLE MEET

J. R. Allgyer, secretary-treasurer of the Ohio Livestock Association and the Columbus, Cleveland, Cincinnati and Pittsburgh Producers Marketing Associations was the principal speaker at a Cedarville Township Farm Bureau meeting at Community Hall, Monday evening. Mr. Allgyer traced the history of cooperative marketing of livestock and pointed out recent changes in the work, such as direct to packer movements, trucking of livestock and auction sales. He urged farmers to have a voice in marketing their products.

Entertaining features of the program consisted of a flute solo by Clyde Hutcheson, clog dance by John Jenks and report of the Cincinnati Club tour by Clevis Jacobs. John W. Collins is township chairman with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Creswell in charge of the program.

Barbers Give Downtowners "Close Shave"

SECOND PLACERS IN TENTH INNING RALLY TO SNARE OVERTIME

Avenge Old Defeat; Score
Four Times In
Extra Stanza

Playing its third extra inning game of the season, the Downtowner Country Club softball team extended its winning streak to four games and crept to within half a game of the league-leading Lang Chevroleters by vanquishing Wood's Barbers, 9 to 5 in a ten-inning National League contest at Cox Field Monday night.

The Downtowners selected the first half of the tenth inning with the score tied at 5 to 5 as the appropriate spot and setting for a four-run winning rally, three singles and a like number of errors producing the quartet of tallies.

The triumph enabled the second-placers to square accounts with the Barbers for a 10 to 9 drubbing imposed when the teams clashed during the first round of play.

The D. T. C. Club trailed Wood's during the first six innings. The Barbers jumped into an immediate lead by scoring twice in the first stanza on an error, a hit by Mendenhall, sacrifice fly and an out at first, and added two more in the third on singles by Ketter and Shaw, the runners scoring after the catches when Mendenhall and N. Murrell drove fly balls to the outfield. The last tally for Wood's came in the fifth when Holten clouted a homer with the bases empty.

Held hitless for three rounds, the Downtowners got two runs back in the fourth on an error, single by Higgins, force out and a hit by Frame. They evened the count in the seventh, scoring three times on Becker's single, a pass to Finlay, an error and Huston's timely double.

In the first half of the tenth Prugh and Huston led off with singles, but Prugh was nipped at the plate on LeSourd's roller. Higgins was safe on an error, McCarran singled, and Frame reached first on an error. Hyman was retired at first, unassisted, but Becker was also given a life on an error and four runs were in.

The winners outlasted the Barbers by the bare margin of one blow, ten to nine. Clarence Ketter, pitching for Wood's, was troubled by a sore arm but the Downtowners had difficulty getting safe hits off the ball as it came lobbing slowly over the plate.

"Bud" Shoup, "rookie" outfielder for the Downtowners, roamed far and wide in the short field position, apprehending no less than eight fly balls without a slip. Holten, shortstop for Wood's, led both teams at bat with a home run and two singles in four times up. Lineups:

HITS ENLIVEN GAME WON BY MT. TABOR

A deluge of thirty-four hits enlivened a free-living game won by the Mt. Tabor softball team from the Second U. P. Church team of Xenia by a score of 18 to 14 on the Mt. Tabor diamond Monday night. Mt. Tabor rapped out twenty hits and the losers, fourteen.

Bickett, pitching for the church team, and Thomas, batting for Mt. Tabor, both survived the bombardment to the finish. Despite the heavy clubbing, the contest was exciting because of the frequency with which the lead changed hands.

R. Ferguson, first baseman for the visiting team, clouted the only home run, his circuit blow coming with two runners on the paths in the fourth inning.

Mt. Tabor will play a game with a Gunnersville team at Mt. Tabor Friday evening. Score by innings: Second U. P. 4 0 0 5 2 0 1 0-14

N. Y. STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, June 16.—The dull and irregular see-saw of prices of the active stocks continued without change today. Transactions on the big board in the first three hours fell 12 per cent under those of the same period yesterday, which in turn was the slowest session since May 12. The bears hammered a dozen or so of the leaders in an effort to start the whole market downward, but trading dried up as prices settled downward. A strong market for German stocks at home and German bonds in New York reflected an improvement in political and economic conditions in that part of the world.

SECOND PLACERS IN TENTH INNING RALLY TO SNARE OVERTIME

Avenge Old Defeat; Score
Four Times In
Extra Stanza

Playing its third extra inning game of the season, the Downtown Country Club softball team extended its winning streak to four games and crept to within half a game of the league-leading Lang Chevroleters by vanquishing Wood's Barbers, 9 to 5 in a ten-inning National League contest at Cox Field Monday night.

The Downtowners selected the first half of the tenth inning with the score tied at 5 to 5 as the appropriate spot and setting for a four-run winning rally, three singles and a like number of errors producing the quartet of tallies.

The triumph enabled the second-placers to square accounts with the Barbers for a 10 to 9 drubbing imposed when the teams clashed during the first round of play.

The D. T. C. Club trailed Wood's during the first six innings. The Barbers jumped into an immediate lead by scoring twice in the first stanza on an error, a hit by Mendenhall, sacrifice fly and an out at first, and added two more in the third on singles by Ketter and Shaw, the runners scoring after the catches when Mendenhall and N. Murrell drove fly balls to the outfield.

The tally for Wood's came in the fifth when Holten clouted a homer with the bases empty. Held hitless for three rounds, the Downtowners got two runs back in the fourth on an error, single by Higgins, force out and a hit by Frame. They evened the count in the seventh, scoring three times on Eckler's single, a pass to Finlay, an error and Huston's timely double.

In the first half of the tenth Prugh and Huston led off with singles, but Prugh was nipped at the plate on LeSourd's roller. Higgins was safe on an error, McCutran singled, and Frame reached first on an error. Hyman was retired at first, unassisted, but Eckler was also given a life on an error and four runs were in.

The winners outlasted the Barbers by the bare margin of one blow, ten to nine. Clarence Ketter, pitcher for Wood's, was troubled by a sore arm but the Downtowners had difficulty getting safe hits off the ball as it came lobbing slowly over the plate.

"Bud" Shoup, "rookie" outfielder for the Downtowners, roamed far and wide in the short field position, apprehending no less than seven fly balls without a slip. Holten, shortstop for Wood's, led both teams at bat with a home run and two singles in four times up.

HITS ENLIVEN GAME WON BY MT. TABOR

A deluge of thirty-four hits enlivened a freighting game won by the Mt. Tabor softball team from the Second U. P. Church team of Xenia by a score of 18 to 14 on the Mt. Tabor diamond Monday night. Mt. Tabor rapped out twenty hits and the losers, fourteen.

B. Bickett, pitching for the church team, and Thomas, hurling for Mt. Tabor, both survived the bombardment to the finish. Despite the heavy clubbing, the contest was exciting because of the frequency with which the lead changed hands.

R. Ferguson, first baseman for the visiting team, clouted the only home run, his circuit blow coming with two runners on the paths in the fourth inning.

Mt. Tabor will play a game with a Gunnersville team at Mt. Tabor Friday evening. Score by Innings: Second U. P. 0 0 0 2 0 0 0 14 Mt. Tabor 3 4 0 2 1 4 3 18 Batteries: Xenia—B. Bickett and H. Bull; Mt. Tabor—Thomas and Ford.

EIGHT INJURED AS TRAIN LEAPS TRACKS

NEW YORK, June 16.—Eight persons were injured and an undetermined number bruised and shaken when a New York, New Haven and Hartford train jumped the tracks at the Woodlawn Station in the Bronx today.

The passenger train, after leaving its tracks, sidetracked a freight car and then crashed against a steel pillar.

The eight believed seriously injured were taken from the cars unconscious. It was believed there were no fatalities.

N. Y. STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, June 16.—The dull and irregular see-saw of prices of the active stocks continued without change today. Transactions on the big board in the first three hours fell 12 per cent under those of the same period yesterday, which in turn was the slowest session since May 12. The bears hammered a dozen or so of the leaders in an effort to start the whole market downward, but trading dried up as prices settled downward. A strong market for German stocks at home and German bonds in New York reflected an improvement in political and economic conditions in that part of the world.

immediate results. But there is no disloyalty and no crime in all the category of human weaknesses which compares with the failure of probity in the conduct of public trust.

"Monetary loss or even the shock to moral sensibilities is perhaps a passing thing, but the breaking down of the faith of a people in the honesty of their government and in the integrity of their institutions, the lowering of respect for the standards of honor which prevail in high places, are crimes for which punishment can never atone."

It was a speech such as the loyal Marion home-folk have long waited to hear, and the deep hush was punctuated by a murmur of approval that rippled to the far reaches of the throng.

There were many on the platform and in the assemblage who knew and loved Warren Harding throughout a life-time in a small city, and long before even he ever dreamed of the White House. The years that followed his death were tragic years to them as investigation and litigation unrolled unsavory episodes at Washington. And to these men, loyal friends and neighbors and cronies, the reassuring words of Mr. Hoover and Mr. Coolidge were as music.

Probably few Presidents have been so extolled for their personal qualities as was President Harding today. His kindness, his amiability, his loyalty, and his ability to dwell upon at length by both President Hoover and Ex-President Coolidge.

"His was a mind and character fitted for a task where the one transcendent need was the healing quality of gentleness and friendliness," said President Hoover. "He was a man of delicate sense of honor, of sympathetic heart, of transcendent gentleness of soul—who reached out for friendship, who gave of it loyally and generously in his every thought and deed."

There was scant doubt, Mr. Coolidge observed, that time and circumstance required a man of President Harding's type when he came to the White House. The country, he pointed out, was still technically at war and disturbed and distraught.

"He had experience and ability, courage and patience, combined with a generous toleration and cheerful optimism that inspired confidence. He understood the people and the people understood him."

"In composing a situation, in pacifying men, he was a master." The former President dwelt at considerable length upon the legislative accomplishments of the Harding administration. He pointed out that in the short span of two years after Harding's induction into office there was accomplished really a prodigious amount of constructive governmental effort—the making of peace with the central powers, enactment of a new tariff law, immigration restricted, a budget bureau established, the war veterans cared for through the establishment of the veterans bureau, taxes reduced, the shipping business and railroad operation liquidated and reformed, finances put on a firm foundation, and finally open competition was gained through President Harding's calling the first Washington naval conference.

"Such in brief outline," Mr. Coolidge continued, "are some of the policies adopted under the leadership of President Harding for the restoration of the United States and the pacification of the world. It would be difficult to find any peace time period of little or two years when so much that was beneficial was accomplished as during his administration."

It was Mr. Coolidge who acted as master of ceremonies at today's exercises. He is honorary president of the Harding Memorial Association, which was formed at that year's funeral. He was unable to find time to dedicate the structure. It was even suggested that perhaps a dedicatory other than a President should be chosen.

But it is traditional that a memorial to a former President should be dedicated by an incumbent President. The friends of the twenty-ninth President were obdurate.

A resolution was sponsored in the Ohio legislature by indignantly the friends of Warren Harding, calling upon President Hoover to dedicate the Memorial. There was considerable feeling about it in Ohio. The 1930 election came and went, as had the election of 1928, and still no sign of the dedication.

Eventually, after some negotiation, it was arranged this spring that if a satisfactory date could be found in June both President Hoover and ex-President Coolidge would join in the dedication.

And so it was today that the thirty-first President, together with the thirtieth, came to this historic Ohio city to say the necessary words that will perpetuate in this gleaming white monument the memory of their predecessor—a kindly and companionable man who may or may not sleep all the more peacefully for their coming.

teen-acre tract, which is being made into a beautiful park. The designers have so arranged it that no commercial enterprises can ever encroach upon the last resting of the Hardings.

The story of the conception and realization of this memorial is in itself an interesting one.

The nation was electrified on the night of August 2, 1923, by the news that the President of the United States had expired with startling suddenness in a great hotel in San Francisco. Eight days later, after a long funeral trip across the country, and a state funeral in Washington, his body was brought back here to the scene of his boyhood and of his business and political success, and placed in a vault in the Marion Cemetery.

A few weeks later, personal and official friends of President Harding held a meeting to discuss a memorial to his memory. The result was the Harding Memorial Association, which was incorporated in Columbus on Oct. 1 of that same year. The incorporators were the leading citizens and old personal friends of President Harding in Marion, and the members of his cabinet and a few personal friends in Washington.

Calvin Coolidge, who had succeeded to the White House, was named honorary President of the board of trustees. Others were Charles E. Hughes, then secretary of State, now chief justice; John W. Weeks, then secretary of war, now deceased; Charles G. Dawes, now ambassador to Great Britain; Postmaster Harry S. New; Secretary of the Interior Hubert Work; Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty; Secretary of the Navy Edwin Denby, now deceased; Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon; Secretary of Commerce, now President, Herbert Hoover; Secretary of Agriculture Henry C. Wallace, now deceased; D. R. Cressler, then Governor of the Federal Reserve Board; John Barton Payne, now head of the Red Cross; E. B. McLean, Washington Publisher; Fred Upham, then Treasurer of the Republican National committee, now deceased; John Hays Hammond; Senator Joseph S. Freelinghouse, of New Jersey; James F. Prendergast of Marion; Hoke Donithen of Marion, with George B. Christain, Jr., the late President's Secretary, as secretary of the board. The trustees were named to serve for twenty-one years. Death and resignation has taken some toll of the trustees and the incorporators.

Public donations to the fund for erecting the memorial were instantaneous and substantial. The nation was still stunned by the death of the lovable, genial man who had restored informality and unconventionality in the White House after the rigorous regimen of the war.

School children poured pennies and nickels and dimes into the treasury, while fraternal organizations and wealthy men sent checks for hundreds and thousands of dollars. Altogether, a total of $783,168.56 was contributed, to which by investment and other means the Association added enough to make the total fund $1,211.75 by 1925.

Meanwhile, the oil and other political scandals attached to the Harding administration had broken with all their sensation and shock. President Coolidge had been elected, and there were Cabinet shifts and other changes in Washington.

The work on the memorial proceeded apace. Actual construction was started in the fall of 1925, and on May 30, 1926, Charles E. Dawes presided at the laying of the cornerstone. Dawes was then vice president.

In 1928 the memorial was finished. It was in the summer and a presidential campaign was in progress. President Coolidge had displayed no enthusiasm to dedicate the Memorial during his incumbency. President Hoover was elected in November of that year. He, too, seemed unable to find time to dedicate the structure. It was even suggested that perhaps a dedicatory other than a President should be chosen.

But it is traditional that a memorial to a former President should be dedicated by an incumbent President. The friends of the twenty-ninth President were obdurate.

The Mysterious Young Man

By LOUISE GERARD

READ THIS FIRST:

Roy T. Burney, young American millionaire, makes a mysterious call on Helen, Countess of Moorings, at Moorings Castle, England. The countess, middle-aged, attractive, and the mother of three grown sons, is at first terror-stricken, then visibly pleased on Burney's appearance. Later, Ann Carmichael, daughter of an exploring professor who lost his life on an expedition to Borneo, hears the sound of a revolver shot as she returns to her apartment in London late at night. Outside the door she finds a man's hat with the name Roy T. Burney in it and a bullet hole through the crown. Frightening off two prowlers, she finds Burney inside the door, slightly wounded. She takes him into her apartment and while she prepares coffee he burns a packet of letters. She detects the odor of burning paper on her return to the room.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 7

A COOL young man! Clever young man! A young man by no means as simple as he looked! One not easily caught napping, either. Ann Carmichael decided as she heard Burney disposing of the burned papers.

For all that, she determined to trip him up if possible. On his return to the room she poured out the coffee.

"Help yourself," she said, waving a hand towards the food. Then pushing a box of cigarettes forward, she took one herself.

"Have you a match?" she asked casually.

The ghost of a smile quivered for a moment on his lips.

"Not one, but—I'll make you a spill, or fetch a box if you'll tell me where they're to be found," he said, getting to his feet.

"By the gas stove in the kitchen, right at the end of the passage." That he knew she had been trying to "catch him napping" amused Ann. Generally she was by far the smartest of her circle. Roy T. Burney was going up in her estimation by leaps and bounds.

He went to the door. On opening it, however, he paused, finger on lips. With a quick, silent movement she darted to his side.

The light was on in the little hall. From the front door came faint stealthy sounds, the strating of metal on metal.

"Those two 'guys' trying to pick my lock," she whispered.

"Since you're an American, this is the moment for your hand to go to your hip pocket for the six shooter."

The note of joyous adventure in her voice made his intent face relax a little.

"I've never touched one in my life," she whispered, and I couldn't hit a house if I tried."

"I'll phone the police, and we'll catch them red-handed," she said.

"Turning quickly away she went back into the sitting-room, towards her worktable by the side of which was a telephone. Before she could touch it he was beside her, grabbing her wrist with fingers that felt like steel wire. To the girl his touch was magnetic. It ran through her like an electric current, making her start and quiver. It gave her the feeling of having met her "fate" in this underlined youth with an American accent who gripped her wrist with fingers like live wires.

The amazing fact alienated her. "I can't have any outside interference," he said firmly. "I'm real sorry you've been dragged into this business, but since you have, you must take orders from me."

"I wasn't dragged. I brought you into my flat with malice aforethought because I wanted to hear your story."

"Well, that eases my conscience some, because if they get in I'm a dead man, and it's not likely they'd leave you alive to tell the tale."

Ann drew her wrist away from the steel-like magnetic fingers.

"If it comes to killing," she said, "this side may be able to keep its ends up. As it happens I can do a bit of shooting, too, so I'll get my revolver."

"You sure were set to help me," he said with an air of relief.

She crossed the room, to a cabinet on the other side. Opening a drawer she took out a workmanlike weapon and a box of cartridges, and started filling it.

"With a teasing smile she glanced at him.

"In my language this is a revolver. You, I suppose, would call it a gun?"

"What's so darned funny about being an American?" he asked in a slightly aggrieved tone.

Ann did not know. Her liking for him was increasing amazingly, and when she really liked people she teased them.

When the revolver was loaded they went back to the hall and stood side by side watching the front door. Presently the latch turned. The door moved about a quarter of an inch to be stopped by the bolts.

in darkness before I came in. They must have been watching outside, waiting to see which was lighted up. But aren't they afraid you might call for the police?"

"They know I wouldn't. There's too much at stake. And it all has to be done with the soft pedal down."

Again the door moved, this time as if those outside had their shoulders against it.

Ann raised her revolver, her soft mouth suddenly firm, her gaze on the door, ready to wing them if it should give way under the strain.

As if fascinated Burney watched her

If you are going to New York on your vacation this summer, or plan to stop there on an Eastern trip, you will find music and limb-flinging as the torrid-weather dish for the tired Broadwayite during the hot months.

"Rhapsody in Black" is as different as black from white compared to any other Negro show. It is akin to a choral recital, primed with spirituals, adaptations of foreign music and swinging dance movements.

Ethel Waters sings best "Where's My Prince Charming" and "You Can't Stop Me From Loving You." This show is much too solemn for the imprisoned rhythm of the Negro race. The tired business man is very tired this year and should have his dancing and fast-

Beatrice Lillie, the British aristocrat who loves to clown and Ethel Waters, the brown-tinted lass who loves to croon, are the shining lights of these pieces.

The "Little Show" has grown up. It is no longer the satyr making faces at things that are but shouldn't be. It has graduated to a pretentious caravanserai of entertainment with expensive playwrights contributing sketches, highly-paid guest performers and a long list of songs and skits draped around the antics of Miss Lillie.

The comedienne, in a sketch called "The Late Comer," mirrors the lady who has seen the picture at the movies before. In "Cinema Lorelei" she philosophizes on the phenomenon that most of the pictures of Marlene Dietrich, the German star, appear to include her lovely legs.

And still on the theme of pictures, there is a tricky song called "I'll Putcha Pitcha in the Paper." Miss Lillie's travesty on the impenetrable Ruth Drapers "Railway Station on the Western Plains" is reported to be the best of the numbers.

In addition to the wit and comical of Lady Peel there is flashy dancing by Carl Randall, amusement by

"The Home Of Thrift"

If that part of the new tax law which concerns building association deposits, just passed by the Legislature, receives the approval of the Governor and becomes a law, the building associations will be able to pay the tax and thus furnish their patrons a tax free investment.

This is a long desired accomplishment and it has been freely predicted that it will bring to the associations of Ohio all of the money that they can profitably use and that it will presently reduce the cost of money to the hundreds of thousands of people who are acquiring homes through the associations.

A tax free investment, amply secured by first mortgages and safety reserves, and giving the returns and conveniences afforded by the associations, will assume an enviable position in the field of finance.
